ALUMNI REPORT,

University of Illinois.

INTRODUCTION.

RECENT amendments to the constitution make it the duty of the Secretary to send, within three months after commencement, a report of the proceedings of commencement week, to each member of the Alumni Association who is in "good standing." The report is meant to be no more than a simple narration of the exercises as they occurred, made for those Alumni who were not present, and is intended to contain no element of criticism.

To this report the Secretary is instructed to add such matter as in his or her judgment will be of interest to the members of the Association. The revision of the constitution, approved at the recent business meeting, is published as matter having this qualification. Another addition is a history of the movement resulting in the adoption of an Alumni badge, which, though having been for four years in charge of a committee, is doubtless unknown to many.

Last April the then acting Secretary, in compliance with the demands of the constitution, issued a circular letter calling for the occupation in full and post-office address of each Alumnus, and for the payment of the annual fees of the Association members. The response of those from whom any communication was received, was so liberal that the finances were placed in a condition of prosperity heretofore unequaled. This warrants an effort, which will be made, to send copies of the report of 1890 to all university graduates.

A strong attempt has been made to secure a trustworthy directory. After the issue of April a further call was made in June by the Secretary for addresses. The replies to this gave evidence that many copies of the former communication were never received by the persons to whom they were addressed, though nothing had been spared to insure the return of undelivered circulars. It is probable the same fate met a part of the postal cards sent out in June. It is probable also that the same fate awaits a part of these reports. After persistent effort some two hundred and fifty addresses were obtained. The Secretary would be pleased to hear from anyone in regard to those addresses of Alumni which are not known to be authentic. It is the desire of the Association to make the Secretary's office the trustworthy headquarters of information in regard to graduates of the university. No unity of action on any question can be expected without it.

JUNE CAMPBELL HUNT.

Champaign, Ill., July 28, 1890.

CONSTITUTION OF THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS.

ADOPTED JUNE 10, 1890.

SEC. 4. This Constitution and By-Laws shall be in force from their adoption.

THE ALUMNI BADGE.

At the business meeting of the Alumni Association, Tuesday, June 8th, 1886, Professor N. C. Ricker, '72, was appointed to look up an appropriate design for an Alumni badge and report the following year.

June 7th, 1887, Professor Ricker reported that the committee had investigated the matter and recommended a badge which all students who had gone from the University could wear, whether they were graduates or not. The committee further recommend that the badge for all students should be similar in design but so varied in detail of construction as to distinguish those students who had completed a full course from those who had not.

The report was approved, and on motion, N. C. Ricker, '72, and Lorado Z. Taft, '79, were appointed a committee to select a badge in conformity with the above report, the badge to be of gold, plain in design and to cost not more than five dollars each. The committee was to report at the next meeting.

June 12, 1888, Professor Ricker, chairman of the committee, reported that he had made a design for the Alumni badge, differing somewhat from those presented a year ago. He submitted a specimen made in silver for the criticism and approval of the Association. It consisted of an eight-pointed star with raised margin and raised monogram U. I., on the ground to be engraved the two last figures of the date of graduation as well as the figure 1 for Alumni holding certificates only, 2 for those who have the first, and 3 for those who have obtained the second degree. The badge was two centimetres in extreme diameter, or just the size of an ordinary copper cent, and about the same as the G. A. R. or K. P. badges.

The report was approved and the committee continued with instructions to arrange for their manufacture.

June 11th, 1889, Lorado Z. Taft, '79, in absence of chairman N. C. Ricker, '72, submitted an informal report to the effect that the committee had taken some pains to canvass among the members of the Association with view of ascertaining the probable number who would require badges, and that the result had been very unsatisfactory. The committee had been unable to secure more than eight or nine persons who would pledge themselves without reserve to purchase. The committee thought that so small a number would not justify any jewelry firm making the necessary die, and recommended that no further action be taken in the matter for the present. On motion the report was accepted and the committee continued.

At the adjourned meeting the following day a motion was carried appropriating ten dollars from the general funds of the Association for the purpose of procuring a die for the Alumni badge, and instructing the Treasurer to pay that amount into the hands of the chairman of the badge committee, provided it remained in the treasury after defraying the ordinary expenses of the Association.

November 23, 1889, the following agreement was entered into with Mr. Zi. Riley:

Memorandum of agreement between Mr. Zi Riley, of Champaign, jeweler, and N. Clifford Ricker, of Urbana, chairman of badge committee of Alumni Association of University of Illinois, made November 23, 1889:

Mr. Riley is to have exclusive sale of the Alumni or University badges until the next annual meeting of the Alumni Association in June, 1890, and thereafter until the Association makes a different arrangement therefor.

He is to keep a supply of badges for sale, and is to sell them at prices not exceeding the following: Oxidized silver on plated button, 40c; 14 K gold on plated button, $1 10; 14 K gold badge and button, $1.65; 14 K gold badge and button, enameled ground, $2.20. These four styles are to be mounted as lapel buttons, scarf pins or lace pins, to suit the purchaser, and are to be sold at same prices.

These badges are all to be struck with the die belonging to the Alumni Association, and are to be made exclusively by Jurgens & Anderson, of Chicago, and are to be of standard quality, as already agreed upon with the manufacturers. Any engraving, addition of pendants, bangles, etc., is to be extra, at prices arranged with Mr. Riley in each case.

For badges mailed to purchasers, 7c for each badge must be remitted to Mr. Riley in addition to the price of badge as previously stated, to cover cost of postage and insurance of safe delivery.

It is the desire of the Alumni Association to make this badge a University badge, as far as possible, not restricting it to graduates. Therefore, Mr. Riley is authorized to sell the badges to all past or present students of this University and to its instructors, but to no other persons. In order to make a distinction between Alumni and undergraduates, it is requested that date of graduation of graduates be engraved on the badge itself, and that class dates of undergraduates be engraved on pendants, etc.

[Signed.] N. Clifford Ricker,
Chairman Badge Committee Alumni Association.

[Signed.] Ozias Riley.

June 10th, 1890, the badge committee submitted the following report, which was accepted and the committee discharged with thanks:

University of Illinois, June 10, 1890.

To the Alumni Association:

Your committee on badges beg leave to report as follows:

They have had a steel die made by Jurgens & Anderson, Chicago, at a cost of eight dollars instead of ten appropriated for that purpose. They have further made a contract with the same firm for the manufacture of the badges in four different styles, each mounted in three different ways, at the following prices: Oxidized silver, 35 cents; rolled gold plate, $1.00; 14 K solid gold, $1 50; 14 K solid gold, enamelled ground, $2.00.

Bids for the taking charge of the sale of these badges were received from three parties in Champaign and Urbana, and a contract for their sale was made with Zi Riley, Champaign, at the following prices: Oxidized silver, 40 cents; rolled gold plate, $1.10; 14 K solid gold, $1 65; 14 K solid gold, enamelled ground, $2 20. With the exception of the silver badges, these prices allow Mr. Riley ten per cent. on cost prices for his trouble. He has exclusive sale of the badges until other arrangements are ordered by the Association.

As the business entrusted to the committee by you has been completed, it now asks to be discharged.

Very respectfully submitted,

[SIGNED] N. C. RICKER,
Chairman of Committee on Badges.

Mr. Riley has sold up to this date (July 28) forty of the enamelled gold pins, fifty-four of the solid gold and rolled gold plate pins and sixty-four of the oxidized silver pins, making in all 158 pins. Probably these have been largely purchased by resident Alumni, members of the graduating class and undergraduates. To those who have not seen the badge it may not be out of place to say that it has met with universal approval.

PROCEEDINGS OF COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

COMPETITION FOR HAZELTON MEDAL.

Individual competitive drills have taken place more or less regularly for a number of years passed. The custom began with the captains offering prizes to the members of their companies to promote the efficiency of their respective companies in the company competitive drill. This year the idea has been enlarged. Early in the year, Mr. W. C. Hazelton, of Forest Glen, Ill., offered fifty dollars to be used in making a medal to be held and worn for one year by the cadet winning highest rank in individual competition. Several designs were submitted by students of the University. One designed by James P. Hubbell, '92, of Davenport, Iowa, was chosen. The medal is made of gold and is exceedingly beautiful and artistic.

Rules for competitors have been made by the faculty and the award is upon the following points:

1. Erectness of carriage, military appearance and neatness.
2. Execution of the school of the soldier without arms.
3. Manual of arms with and without numbers.

The drill occurred Monday afternoon, June 2d, and lasted four hours. The judges were Adjutant General Vance, of Springfield; Colonel Gaines Lawson, of Springfield, and Captain Dwight C. Haven, '83, of Joliet, who awarded the medal to the designer, James P. Hubbell, '92, and the second place to Charles A. Gunn, '92, of South Evanston. Dr. S. H. Peabody presented the medal to the successful contestant, after which Major S. D. Bawden, '90, presented Lieut. Curtis B. Hoppin, who has just closed his three years' engagement as professor of military science and tactics, with an elegant sword, a gift of the students of the University.

COMPETITIVE DRILL.

The regular company competitive drill occurred Tuesday afternoon, June 3d, on the University Campus. The University battalion containing seven companies participated in the drill. The judges in the Hazelton medal contest served again on competitive drill, and awarded the first place to company A. After the drill the battalion was formed in a hollow square and Miss Jessie Ellars, '90, of Tuscola, presented the banner in behalf of the ladies of the University. She said to the members of the company that the ability with which they won this contest would if applied make them successful in the future. She expressed the hope that they would never be called upon to use their military training, but that if the country needed them that she was sure they would prove loyal soldiers.

BACCALAUREATE.

The Baccalaureate sermon was delivered to the class of 1890 at the usual hour on Sunday afternoon, June 10th, by the Regent, and was listened to by a large audience. His text was found in Acts 21: 39, "A citizen of no mean city."

The Doctor drew a few rapid sketches of Italian scenes, famous for beauty and interest. He recalled also the gentle and verdant slopes of English landscapes, the terraced hills of France and Italy, covered with the olive and the vine; the cliffs of the Riviera, the snow clad summits of the Alps and the Apennines; the lovely bay rimmed with Ischia and Capri, Sorrento and Vesuvius. Then he asserted his belief that there can be found abroad no bluer skies, no brighter sunshine, no bolder nor more picturesque scenery, no lovelier lakes, no sweeter vales, nor any form of grandeur or beauty, that can not be paralleled, or even surpassed in the lands of our country between the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts. Nature has given the European no finer conditions, nor has art produced finer exterior effects than can be found with us. It is not true that it takes three hundred years to make a perfect lawn.

Turning from these more superficial and material topics, the speaker presented several reasons why he believed that the young of America should deem themselves specially favored in their present opportunities.

1. That they live in a land where there is room enough. Where as yet land is plentiful, labor is scarce. The great bane of the countries of Europe is their plethora of people. There is not work for so many hands nor bread for so many mouths, and so strong men beg, and gaunt women stretch forth beseeching hands and cry fame, fame. This is why one sees in the Roman campagna hundreds of men, and women too, in platoons, turning the sod with spades. Plows might do it quicker, but the men would die.

2. That they live in a land where the state does not claim for military service from three to five of the best years of every young man's life. There every morning is roused by the reveille, the hours keep step with the throbbing drum, and night everywhere sits brooding over grimly watching fortifications.

3. That they live in a land so free from taxation; taxes in Europe being levied in ways innumerable, and in amounts beyond our conception of possibility. There a laborer earns thirty cents a day, while the land pays six dollars per acre yearly to the government.

4. That they are in so great measure free from the inertia of antiquity, the stratifications of society, caste, the iron shackles of custom, social, religious, political.

5. That they inhale a clearer and purer religious atmosphere. The common people, of Italy for example, is a sensuous people. They eat, and drink and sleep; they need little shelter and only scanty clothing. They have no aspirations; they vegetate and are happy. The Romish church, with a certain marvellous tact, meets these people on their own plane without trying to lift them any higher. She satisfies them with festas, processions, tinsel ornaments, paper flowers, and confessions. Out of all comes a low standard of morality, public and private, which is only enervating and depressing.

These are only some of the more salient reasons why the young men and women of America should appreciate and enjoy their patrimony.

The speaker closed with a few more direct words of kindly admonition to the graduating class, assuring them of the affection and kindly solicitude which would always follow them from their Alma Mater. He sought to stimulate them by all noble and elevating influences to all chastened, purified, and glorious manly and womanly service, by which only they could hope for real success in this life, or a joyous entrance into the blessed haven of everlasting joy in the life which shall be.

REPORT AND RESIGNATION OF SECRETARY SLAUSON.

After the reading and adoption of the minutes of last meeting, a communication was read from H. B. Slauson, '82, of Seattle, Wash., stating that, owing to his removal to that somewhat remote city, it was necessary for him to resign the office of Secretary and Treasurer of the Association, and that Thomas F. Hunt, '84, had kindly consented to act in his place for the balance of the year, and upon leaving Champaign he had placed the records, money and other property of the Association in his hands. The following is that part of Mr. Slauson's report relating to the business affairs of the Association:

Report of the Secretary and Treasurer from June, 1889, to February, 1890:

Reports

As soon after the June meeting as I could find time for the work, I prepared a report of the proceedings of commencement week, incorporating with it such other matter as I thought of interest to the members of the Association and appended an Alumni Directory compiled from the best information attainable. I mailed fully six hundred copies to the graduates, trustees and faculty of the University and such other persons as I thought interested.

I have no means of knowing how many of these reports reached those to whom they were sent. In a very large number of cases I was obliged to use the addresses furnished by the directory published with the University catalogue, and have reason to believe many of these were incorrect.

I sent a package of the reports to Mr. Robert Orr, '82, at Chicago, who kindly distributed them among the graduates there.

The report cost the Association:

For printing 650 copies	$30 90
Postage and express	6 66
Compensation of Secretary	25 00
	$62 56

I received something like twenty letters immediately after mailing the report, acknowledging receipt and expressing more or less satisfaction with it. I estimate that about twelve dollars was received by the Treasurer, and two or three former graduates joined the Association as a result of its publication.

Treasurer's Report.

Total receipts from June to February 1st, 1890	$79 00
Total expenditures from June to February 1st, 1890	71 47
Balance on hand	$ 7 53

Thirty-three dollars of the above amount was turned over to me by the chairman of the piano committee, as ordered by the Association at the June meeting.

A detailed account of receipts and expenses can be had from the Treasurer's books.

The Association is free from debt.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON CONSTITUTION.

The committee, H. B. Slauson, '82, T. F. Hunt, '84, and C. W. Rolfe, '72, appointed in 1889 to revise the constitution, reported through Professor Rolfe, who read the constitution as revised by the committee. On motion of S. A. Bullard, '78, the report was received. Motion to adopt was made by Solon Philbrick, '84. Constitution as reported was amended on motion of S. A. Bullard, '78, so as to require one-half instead three-fourths vote of all members present at any regular meeting to admit applicant to membership. On motion of A. N. Talbot, '81, it was amended by striking out clause requiring at least one member of the Executive Committee to be present at meetings of the Association. It was, also, amended on motion of S. A. Bullard, '78, so as to require all meetings of the Association to be held at the University of Illinois. The constitution as amended was unanimously adopted. (See pages 5, 6 and 7.)

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON BADGE.

N. Clifford Ricker, '72, on behalf of the committee, submitted a written report (see page 10), and stated that the committee had performed its duties and wished to be discharged. The report was received and the committee discharged with thanks.

ANNIVERSARY COMMITTEE.

On motion of F. M. McKay, '81, the President was instructed to appoint a committee of three to report at the next meeting of the Association in 1891, an appropriate plan of celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the first graduating class, and, as near as may be, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the University.

The following committee has been appointed by President Philbrick: F. M. McKay, '81, James N. Mathews, '72, and H. M. Beardsley, '79.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

On motion the rules were suspended and the Secretary was instructed to cast a ballot for Solon Philbrick, '84, President; Myrtle E. Sparks, '89, Vice-President, and for Mrs. Thomas F. Hunt, '84, to fill the unexpired term of H. B. Slauson, Secretary.

JUNIOR EXHIBITION.

The first Junior Exhibition under the patronage of the faculty, was held in 1888 in connection with the twentieth anniversary of the opening of the University. In 1889, Tuesday afternoon of commencement week was given to this exercise, and the Alumni program was postponed until evening. There was no society address. The same plan was followed this year. The program consisted of orations selected by the faculty from those submitted by members of the Junior class. The program was further stimulated this year by the offer by seven residents of Champaign of twenty-five dollars to the orator winning first place, and a prize of ten dollars to the orator winning second place. The result was a satisfactory program in every respect. The judges,—Rev. C. N. Wilder, Rev. T. A. Parker, and Judge J. O. Cunningham,—awarded the first place to Thomas S. Green, of Jacksonville, and the second place to Wirt McCormick, of Mahomet.

ALUMNI LITERARY EXERCISES.

A large audience welcomed the Alumni on Tuesday evening in the Chapel. The exercises were opened by an overture by the orchestra, after which Dr. Peabody welcomed the Alumni to their Alma Mater for the tenth time.

The Regent said:

Miss President and Alumni: The University of Illinois again extends a most cordial welcome to her returning sons and daughters. She rejoices in the perennial affection of her children, that heart-love which prompts them to leave their busy pursuits and absorbing interests and to make at least an annual pilgrimage to their college home. I trust that you find about you abundant evidences of progress, material and intellectual, which even if not such as may fully satisfy your highest ideal, may still indicate a steady, prosperous, and enduring growth. The members in attendance have increased so that the total list for the last year has been but little short of 500. This result is due to many influences, the largest being the constantly growing and closer affiliation between the University and the public school system of the state, as illustrated by the increased number of accredited schools, and the demand for honorary scholarships.

The new Military Hall, which will be dedicated tomorrow, is the most important addition to our material equipment made during the last twelve years. It measures 100 by 150 feet on the ground, and 40 feet from the floor to the crest of the roof. It has been designed and executed within the resources of the University, at a cost of $15,000, of which only $10,000 were furnished by the state. It has been pronounced by good authority to be the fittest building for its purpose in the northwest, and so far as I have seen, in this country. One or two others make more architectural pretense at several times as much cost, but fail to serve so well their design. This enlargement is valuable, also, because it permits expansion in other respect. The evacuation of the Mechanical Building by the military allows the machine shop to expand into the old drill hall,. Easing its hitherto crowded condition; the old machine room will become a blacksmith shop and foundry, more roomy than the last; a new boiler goes into the old blacksmith shop, which will also give room for a boiler to warm the new Military Hall. In the transformations, room will be found for a new laboratory for dynamic and steam-testing experiments. While this expansion will serve the mechanical department for some years, it is yet believed to be only a temporary expedient, and that ultimately a new shop will be required, quite different in its design, and still larger in extent.

I must take this occasion to recall to your minds the position which this University has maintained with almost universal approval, as one respecting religion, honoring the Bible, and revering the God which created the heavens and the earth and all things that be therein. Among the most valuable and most pleasing exercises is that which brings to this place daily all the students for counsel and instruction, at which time we have been accustomed to listen to the reading of the word of God, to sacred song, and to the divine prayer of our Lord. So far as I know, in the more than twenty years that this institution has stood, but one voice has been raised in objection to these exercises. This voice has been raised, not in protest against any invasion of personal right, for exception was offered to this person, if he wished it for cause, but with the avowed purpose of breaking down the custom, and thus abridging the right of those who would here honor God in prayer and praise. It seems an anomoly in a professedly christian land, that the guardians of an institution of learning should be cited before the highest tribunal in the state, no matter upon what ostensible plea, but really to show why they continue to maintain an exercise in which God and His holy word are honored day by day. I rest assured that the Alumni have no sympathy in such a procedure.

And now, in closing, I wish for you a pleasant gathering, the many returns which may be permitted in long lives, and the most abundant prosperity wherever your lots severally are cast.

In the absence of President Lorado Z. Taft, '79, due to an imperative business engagement, Vice-President Mary H.

Williamson, '87, presided and responded in a few well-chosen words on the behalf of the Association.

F. D. Rugg, '82, next sang a bass solo entitled "Song of Hybrias, the Cretan," in his usual acceptable manner.

It was expected that C. H. Kamman, '86, would deliver an address on "The Public School and the State University," but he unfortunately missed his railway connections while enroute and did not reach here until after the exercises were over.

Mrs. W. Bent Wilson, nee Adams, '77, read the following paper on "Social Features of College Life," which held the attention of the audience:

SOCIAL FEATURES OF COLLEGE LIFE.

Another college year is closed. The joyous June time, the fair queen of the months is with us, and she never came greeted with more auspicious surroundings. The month to which is given the honor of ushering into active life, hundreds of young men and women fully equipped for the future that awaits them.

The June of graduation, the completion of the four years' course is the goal of each student from the time he enters college until his diploma is received or degree conferred. College life with all its opportunities and possibilities is truly the fountain which supplies the demands and aspirations of youth; and to those of us whose school days proper are numbered with the past, the retrospection of this life is exceedingly pleasant. Here we are occasionally permitted to return and renew the old life, as it were, with our honored Alma Mater; to grasp again the hands of loved professors and old school mates. In the familiar faces we greet energetic, succe-sful business men and women from all over our country, but the lines that age and care may have drawn cannot conceal the cordial friendship of "Auld Lang Syne." How this bond of fellowship ever permeates our after lives in spite of intervening years, in spite of intervening distance, wholly different surroundings and the new friendships formed. With school mates, it is never 'Off with the old and on with the new," for the tried and true friends of school life can never be supplanted. The laws governing this social life of ours are of vast importance to all, and in relation to college life the interest is manifold, for strength and power for good are attained through these relations as we are building for the future.

This is not the sociability that brings together a few who look with disfavor upon all others. Petty jealousies and mistaken wit have in some colleges defeated what might have been social preeminence. It is a fact to note, however, that the uncultured and degrading practice of hazing is becoming less popular each year, and that the antagonism of one class against another is becoming less apparent. Some of the most successful schools of our land are those that have inspired a feeling of contempt for any of these jea'ousies existing between classes. For oftentimes an under student may have more practical knowledge than his brother in the Junior or Senior class, and if they were suddenly called out to battle with the world, he who is lower in college years would so far surpass his elder brother as to lose sight of him.

Two or three generations ago excuses were found for exuberant vitality venting itself in deplorable mischief; then it was looked upon as pent up physical life that must find relief; but in these days of gymnasiums and athletic sports for the young men and calisthenics for the young women, the excuse ceases to exist, the condition is remedied, and in consequence, the moral impulses are strengthened.

There is a new era in social life which bespeaks the acme of "social tendencies, the crowning glory of man." The conditions that nourish and direct these impulses lie in the conscious tendencies and purposes of spiritual development.

Just as a man has gained insight into his life destiny and has learned to submit to the growing appreciation of the governing laws of humanity, with the unselfish love he is capable of giving, so is his social life efficient. We each have one individual part to enact in the group with which we are identified. Blest as we are with equal human possibilities, we have a common pride in lifting each member into a higher, broader, nobler sphere. Our views and lives are broadened, elevated, and life glows with the inspiration of true living. We are taught by all the great leaders of reform that the power of the future lies in the right education of the youth, making us each and all responsible for our share in moulding character. When we realize our social life is not merely for the gratification of pride in any direction but for the upbuilding and expanding of our moral nature, then do we strike the key note in social evolution and "the day will surely follow the dawn." Where but in the great universities of our country should we expect to find the highest type of social activity? Social tendencies should form the chief concern of education; and education should persistently place in the conscious service of social purpose whatever individual excellencies it may develop; in fact social efficiency in the outcome is the high criterion of every educational activity. The man who loves himself unselfishly, socially in the light of his value to the common good, can obey the command given us, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Indeed, "education has failed of its end if it has failed to develop in the soul, benevolence, the true social spirit." We pause and contemplate the height to which man's ability and ambition have placed him, of the limitless possibilities before him. As in unison there is strength, so future progress lies in social unison. The day is coming too, when men and women shall walk hand in hand in every enterprise. Honor to our own grand country, which stands preeminent in giving to woman equal educational advantages with man. Ever may Illinois point with pride to the day when the doors of this great institution were opened to her worthy daughters as well as her noble sons.

Here we are developed socially, mentally, morally, physically, and only in the co-education of the sexes are the highest social results naturally attained. It is impossible to exist in the atmosphere of a university without imbibing, absorbing or appropriating much so advantageously placed about. A portion of what we learned in books may have been forgotten, but the inspiration derived from an admired teacher or classmate, strengthens with each passing year. Ah, memory's realm is filled with recesses devoted to the reminiscencies of this life. Yonder is our beloved Regent whose eloquence so often filled this chapel, his profound logic, his beautiful word pictures and polished climaxes seem to respond to our hearts' yearning. There are our most worthy professors, one and all, with whom we were so intimately associated and to whom we are so incalculably indebted; memory reproduces the hours of patient kindness and careful, thorough instruction, with the soul-inspiring enthusiasm they were so capable of arousing. Yonder is the arena of our four society halls, the pride of our college, in whose walls are imbedded debate, oration, essay or story couched in the characteristic timidity of the "prep," the bombastry of the freshman, the sophomore's high flown rhetoric, the junior's unequivocal knowledge, and the senior's subdued enthusiasm as he wakes up to the realization there is something yet to be learned. But, oh, the social delights they gave us in the regular work, the open meetings, the anniversaries and union meetings. They formed a most important factor in mental and social culture.

The recollections of our school life are truly a source of unlimited pleasure. As this day brings together many—how we wish it might be all—of the children of this beneficient institution, it is gratifying to know of the successes achieved in their life work. And as we notice the increased departments and the facilities now offered, with the Regent and Faculty so eminently fitted for the glorious work they are doing, what prediction seems too confident for the future outcome?

To morrow another class goes forth to win laurels in this busy life, and may the corner stone of mental and social culture here laid prove a fitting foundation upon which to build future successes. The character of our social and business life, as we become citizens, demands so much from each one of us; and our standard depends largely on the principles inculcated and habits formed here. To those who still remain, the advantages here afforded will be improved. With uprightness of character and nobleness of purpose as the watchwords, we need not sleep the one hundred years of Bellamy's prophetic vision, to convince ourselves we live in the age of high social culture, when the upbuilding of the universe, as a whole, is not confined to a few, but each plays a prominent, effective part. No life, however secluded, is without its influence. When we are aroused to the importance of the life we are living, the mission we are filling, when we realize we are not placed here merely to exist, but to live nobly, grandly, divinely, then is our life work acceptable. Then the page we each write in the great book of life is a record worthy God's true noble man.

"When the Heart is Young" was very pleasingly rendered by Miss Maud Kimball, who added so much to the musical entertainment of the week.

Henry M. Beardsley, '79, closed the exercises by an address on "The dignity and duty of citizenship." Mr. Beardsley occupied about one hour in the discussion of this subject in an earnest and able manner. The discourse displayed much thought and broad scholarship, and it is to be hoped will result in the continuance of the idea inaugurated by the programme committee; viz., a principal address of sufficient length to make it possible to discuss some one of the vital questions of the day—to use Mr. Beardsley's language, "the time and place to which one may come bringing the best products of one's thought, the best embodiment of one's aims and hopes." The Secretary regrets that the limits of this report make it possible to print only an abstract of this address, which follows:

THE DIGNITY AND DUTY OF CITIZENSHIP.

This annual meeting of the Alumni of this University is intended to be, I am sure, something more than the occasion of the production of a mere literary program. Although we have graduated, our relation to the University has not ceased. If we are successful in the various walks of life we have chosen, our Alma Mater will share the honors we may gain. If our lives are without aim or purpose, if our labors are all lost, she will be the loser as well. I know of no time or place to which we would rather come, bringing the best products of our thought, the best embodiment of our aims and hopes, than here—on these occasions and to this place. I believe that in years to come there will be those of our number who will, on occasions like this, give voice to thoughts and purposes which are the product of earnest, aggressive, kindly living; who will speak words worthy to be long remembered.

My theme tonight lies along the line where we have all been thinking and reading. Whatever may have been our vocation in life since leaving here, whatever the means by which we have been compelled to earn our daily bread, we have been continually interested in those questions which affect the happiness and welfare of our fellow men. When our populations were scattered and only in small part gathered in great cities; when our wealth was not great, and vast fortunes were not concentrated in a few hands, social problems were simple. But things are different now. With multiplied populations and wealth the problems grow more difficult. There are now many agencies at work along many lines. To every evil we seek to apply its proper needed remedy. But there has been a change all along the line of work pursued to better the condition of men. Our charities must continue because there are, and will be, those who are helpless and in want. The influence of the church and all other christian influences must go on changing the hearts and aims of men. But we have ceased to be willing to wait for these to work out the problem of human weal. We have found that in men gathered in masses there is danger of corruption and vice unknown in scant populations. At the same time we are beginning to find that there are in the very massing of men, powers for good not yet fully understood. The great things we have are the result of the massing of men. Our magnificent buildings, great bridges, public parks and railway systems, in fact the marvelous material products of the century would be unknown, except for the fact that many men act together to produce them. The highest and most lofty sentiments the love of and interest in our fellow men, even the love of country are possible only to aggregated men. In keeping with this line of thought we find new ideas of the uses of legislation prevailing. It has been recognized as the province of law to prevent the commission of crime and to regulate contract relations between men. It is now contended that our legislation should even go further than it has. The evils which exist, it is suggested, can be cured by the law. So far have these ideas been carried that it is proposed by some that the state shall take entire control of all our finances; that it shall own, operate and control all industries, and with equal hand deal out plenty to all, and regulate and control the lives of all, until the incentives to crime are gone and there is universal plenty and happiness. That we are putting these ideas into practice is evident.

Our fathers built the school-house as soon as they had built their homes, and so showed their appreciation of the value of education. They soon made a grand system of free public schools and thus gave equal privilege to all. But in Illinois and elsewhere our law makers have gone further and have enacted a law making attendance on the public school compulsory and providing the means and officers to carry these laws into effect. Thus it has been shown that there is a belief that education is necessary for the best interests of the state and the belief also in the ability of the state to do more than merely make it possible that all children in the state may obtain a public school education.

In the light of the present day agitation, then, the interest of the intelligent citizent in our laws is rightly increased. Our position may well be stated in this way. We desire that the people of our Republic shall be made better and happier. Among the many means proposed to this end, it is suggested that much may be done by the change of our laws. It is believed that through the agency of government much may be done. If this be true our position is not that of those who stand apart and give advice. We are ourselves the law-making power. We are alive with interest then to know what we can and what we ought to do.

In our study along these lines we ought, at the first, to understand the past. We will find that we are not pioneers. The past has been at work for us. Our law is not the product of the action of any legislature or series of legislatures. It is the embodiment of the progress of all the past. Every victory for human liberty won upon the battle field is preserved in the law; every advance in human thought expressed in parliament or repeated by the press and by our friends, finds its way into our law, and so is preserved and made a living force. We see, moreover, that the higher moral sentiment of a people affects their laws and in the laws such sentiments find perpetual record. No one can come from a study of our present laws, and of the steps which have led up to them, without feeling how great is the work already accomplished. When, then, he further realizes how great are the privileges guaranteed to each citizen by our present law, and how true it is that he is responsible for further progress, how do the dignity and duty of citizenship rest upon him. Do we not assent that ours is a government of, by and for the people? And does not this mean that all the government we have comes from the people; that its existence, and its regulation depends upon the people; and that it exists not for its own sake nor for the sake of any class or classes, but for the happiness and well being of the people?

The speaker then showed how step by step our liberties had first been fought for and won and then written clear and certain in our laws, and that under our laws we inheret all these blessings. He next gave a large number of illustrations and quoted many decisions of the higher tribunals, showing that the law is an expression of the advance of moral sentiment in a nation, finally leading up to the point that the State and Federal government may legislate in behalf of the good morals and the health of the people and that no legislature can bargain them away. Continuing, the speaker said:

Under existing laws, cities assess taxes and lay out systems of drainage, pave streets, make boulevards and public parks, build schools and provide for the pay of teachers. Thus, and in a thousand other ways, we are by law compelled to pay of our money for the public welfare. Cities forbid buildings unless they are built of brick. The sort of oil which may be sold to us for use in our lamps is regulated, for the purpose of preventing explosions. The rate of interest which may lawfully be contracted for is provided. No one may lawfully prepare a prescription for us or give advice as a physician, or take a case for us in the courts, without a proper examination to prove his ability to do safely for us that which he attempts to do. We provide boards of health, with powers almost arbitrary, in the interests of public health. Marriages are forbidden within certain degrees of consanguinity. In fact, in a thousand ways, the lines along which the State and Federal Governments may legislate, have been laid out.

I have so far given only one half the facts. I have shown how magnificent is the system of law under which we live, but I have not touched upon the evils that exist. I have proven the dignity of a citizen of our republic; but I have not made clear the line of duty before us. Nor have I time to point out present evils. I must assume that they are known to you. And I shall endeavor rapidly to point out some of the ways in which I believe we can fulfill our duties as citizens and some of the further results we may reach. I believe it the duty of the intelligent citizen to encourage the love of country as a sentiment. It is a common bond that holds every citizen alike. It raises all classes to a common level. Beneath the stars and stripes, the rich and poor, the learned and the unlearned stand alike, citizens of a common country. There is here a basis of brotherhood only narrower than that which sees in the whole world a common brotherhood, because of the common fatherhood of our God. This sentiment is not an empty thing. It is not awakened because of a common border line of a common government, but it is the recognition of a fellow feeling with all those whom we understand are ready with their lives and property to defend a common flag, and with whose happiness our happiness is in a large measure linked. We own together the rivers and the mountain tops, the stars and stripes, the history of a hundred years, the promise of the future of America. The love of country is the love of its people and its institutions. As intelligent men and women, in whatever reform we undertake, our plan should be in large part to turn men to the truth we seek to enforce. It is well to aim at an evil hard and determined blows. But we must not assume that the hearts of the people are wrong. Men have strong prejudices, and you may ofttimes batter away with your logic against the doorways of their wills and gain no entrance. But underneath the evils we see the heart of humanity beats warm. We will be successful with our reform if we presume upon this sentiment in men. It may take time. We may not be able to state our cause in such words as will reach the hearts of men. But we can never become true statesmen and stateswomen without this abiding faith in men, and in the triumph of truth over falsehood in the hearts of the masses of men. The devil has his forces strongly posted, to be sure; but the world is not his yet by any means, and in planning what to do, we may presume—yes, must presume upon the fact that ultimately the just cause will carry with it the sympathies and co-operation of the people.

In the management of the affairs of government we see much to condemn. We recognize the fact that in our cities it is almost impossible for men of clean principles, who advocate boldly their ideas of what is just and right in government, to be elected to office in the popular legislative assemblies and by legitimate means. There are good men elected, to be sure; but largely by partisan votes, because they have the nomination of their party, and because they are careful not to offend. What is our duty in this matter? Why, to devise means to overcome this state of things. And in this we should use the intelligence we have as to the choice of methods. The first part of old David Crockett's motto, "Be sure you are right and then go ahead," has been repeated over and over. The other part we do not hear as frequently. Yet it seems to me fully as important: "Be sure you are right and then go ahead, but do not spend your time butting your head against a stone wall or an oak post."

There has been much said against the purchase of votes. In our cities it was no uncommon sight to see men in line each holding in his uplifted hand the ballot prepared for him, that it could be clearly seen he deposited it in the box as he was paid for doing. We might have labored long and hard by orations upon the necessity for a pure ballot, and this evil would not have lessened. But in eight of the states of our union such scenes can not be repeated. The solution was simple. A separate room is prepared. Into it the voter goes alone. His ticket is handed him by the clerk of election there. On it are the names of all candidates for each office. Alone he crosses the names of those he does not wish to vote for. His ballot is put in the box. The bell rings. The number is registered. It is no longer a safe matter to pay a man for his vote for it can not be certain he will vote as he is paid. Men are too apt to do as they were advised by a certain stump speaker in southern Illinois. "Boys," said he, "I understand the democrats propose to buy your votes at this election. Well, take all the money they give you; that's business. But when it comes to voting, vote the republican ticket; that's politics." Why try to do what we can not do, when we can by other means accomplish what we desire.

I have referred to the character of the men chosen to office very largely in our cities. It would certainly be a thing to be desired if we could elect good men. Under the existing condition of things we can not hope for this. But can we not accomplish our purpose to get good laws? These men who hold office want to hold office again. Why may not good citizens co-operate in the interest of wholesome laws? In the early days in the west, when the executive force of the law was weak, the citizens organized their vigilant societies. The man who murdered or stole was summarily seized and punished. This is a form of execution of law, or rather of execution in violation of law, not to be desired; but it was effective. In times when interest in the enforcement of laws in our cities is high, good citizens meet and organize to see the law enforced. In the presence of such organization, the execution does its duty handsomely. But soon the interest dies out, and the law is violated as before. In New York, in the days when the Tweed ring with its ruinous rule was being run down and throttled, a committee of seventy citizens, in whom the intelligence of the city confided, practically controlled the politics of the city, suggesting who should be intrusted with office, and what reform measures ought to prevail. I see no reason why we may not have among intelligent citizens, organized societies everywhere. It should be the purpose of such societies to see to it, first, that all good laws are enforced. It is probable that those in any community who could be so interested would not be enough to elect an executive of their own. But if, irrespective of any party ties, they demand the enforcement of any just law, it would be enforced. Such a conservative organization is a force not to be ignored even in politics.

Again, such associations would give opportunity for studying existing social conditions and for suggesting methods of cure. Any legislation suggested under such conditions would demand the support of the legislator who desired a re-election. The science of government is not so complex a study that only professional politicians can engage in it, nor is it so much a matter of indifference that it may be left to such men. With such organization vast good may be done. The conditions of our people may be studied and practical laws, not suggested by partisan prejudice, may be compelled. We have seen that under our existing constitution and laws we may justify any change desired.

If it be true that intemperance and gambling in all its forms, building fortunes in a day and wrecking them as soon, are detrimental to the moral and temporal prosperity of our people, they may and should be forbidden by law. If our primaries are not run correctly, such an organization as proposed, filled with men whose love of country and their fellow men is greater than their love or fear of party, may compel the change we want.

All along the line from the humbler walks of life comes the demand for new laws to regulate the distribution of wealth. Such distribution is not asked as matter of charity, but as a matter of right. Wealth is not alone the product of individual labor. It is as well the product of the existence of men in association. It is the duty of the law to see that each individual has the reward due for his own labor, and his just portion of the good due him as a member of society. There are other movements against the evils of society which are robbing of property and health and happiness. We must not be indifferent. Duty demands that we give attention. We must not evade the issue for present comfort or ease. Duty demands that in political life we be honest with ourselves and our consciences.

Fellow Alumni, I have been interested, as I know you all have, during the days just past, in listening to the orations of these younger college men, in noting the lofty aims and ambitions which have been the burden of their orations. We remember our own graduating days and our ambitions. I believe that the years which have passed since our college life ended have not seen these ambitions lessen, but that they have grown deeper and broader with each year. When the one hundredth anniversary of the first graduating class has come and the record of our lives has been written, what shall it be? This one was an architect and he builded the most magnificent dome God's sunlight ever shone upon. This one was an engineer, and he builded the most wonderful bridge that ever spanned a chasm. This one was a minister of the Gospel; he spoke the most eloquent sermon men ever listened to from lips of man. This one was a lawyer; never man made such a splendid plea as he made. Such records as these we desire and strive for. But there is a better record which we all desire. It is this: This man, this woman, he, she, was one who sought not selfish ends, but who in a splendid way helped to bring comfort and happiness to his or her fellow men.

COMMENCEMENT DAY.

It is estimated that twenty-eight hundred people assembled in the new Military Hall at ten o'clock June 11th, 1890, to listen to the commencement exercises and to the exercises dedicatory of the Military Hall which preceded. The Military Hall is in many respects an admirable auditorium, its acoustic properties are good, and it is claimed that it will seat thirty-five hundred people comfortably, and can be made to hold four thousand. One of the severest rain storms ever known here on commencement day, however, interrupted the exercises when they were about half over, on account of the deafening noise of the rain falling on the metal roof.

After prayer by Reverend T. A. Parker, S. A. Bullard, '78, chairman of the Building Committee, presented the keys of the Military Hall to the University in the following speech:

PRESENTATION OF KEYS OF MILITARY BUILDING.

Growth is the law of life. When growth ceases decay begins. When the seed is placed in the ground it germinates, sends forth a tiny leaf, slowly increases to full maturity and after fulfilling its mission passes into decay. Not only does this law govern vegetable and animal life, but that of empires, municipalities and societies. They have a beginning, a development, and when they have accomplished the work for which they were created, or cease to perform it, they cease to exist.

When I was a lad my father would call me up before him at times and look me over. He would frequently find that my coat sleeves refused to associate longer with my wrists, or that my pantaloons had lost their intimacy with my ankles, or that my jacket no longer made close connections with my lower garments. Such a condition of things usually called for an appropriation. Those appropriations were never refused. It could be seen that the boy was growing, and with the hope that his future work might be acceptably performed, the things that were necessary for that growth were never refused. Some years ago a boy was born to the commonwealth of the State of Illinois and placed in the lap of these two cities to nurse and cherish. Right well have you taken care of your charge, my friends. You have noticed with pride this boy's growth. First there was but one building—now gone—standing on the ridge of the present campus. The drill hall and machine shops followed, then the magnificent building standing at the south end of this avenue. Soon he outgrew these and asked for other appropriations. More apparatus was required. More room was needed, and barns were furnished, greenhouses provided. Soon a great chemical laboratory was placed along ide of the main building, and now the last piece of dress furnished by a proud and hopeful parent to this growing boy is this great building in which we are met today. The people of our state call this boy up before them every two years and look him over. When they find that he is growing and needs something new in order that what he has attained may be made permanent and that further growth and greater work may follow, appropriations are never refused.

Let us look for a few moments at this building. You will find these walls laid deep in the solid earth, and I think I see in that a likeness to this University. It rests upon the great stable commonwealth of this State, its foundation stones placed solidly on the idea of free education for the people. You will notice that the lower walls are stone, representing the college of agriculture. The agriculture of our state and other states is the great foundation wall on which rests the whole fabric of society. The upper walls are brick and illustrate the college of engineering wherein is the constructive powers of men cultivated. The roof is of wood—the literary and artistic part of the institution. Over all is a covering of metal, and I think I see in it the military spreading its protecting arms over all to shield from the storms that may break upon us.

The windows are large and you will notice are high up above the floor. The whole state is looking toward this University and are anxious that the high schools shall reach up to these windows. Only a short time ago a delegate from a great university suggested some changes in the course of study of the Springfield high school that it might maintain its position as an accredited school. The board of education ordered the change to be made So it is with this. The standards of this University are high up and the people are anxious that the lower schools reach up to the windows and enable their students to look in.

Notice the doors. These on the south have let graduates from this institution go out through all our south land till the states all know men and women from among our children. From this on the east they have gone to the Atlantic and farther. and this on the west has supplied that vast land to the great ocean with strong men and women. You see there is no door on the north. I will here mention a secret known only to the building committee. We were anxious that none of our graduates should escape to Canada. Perhaps the committee were a little hasty, for since the new treaty with Canada that event is not probable.

I close in calling your attention to this great roof. The steel rods represent the students. The largest and highest I suppose to be the seniors, the juniors next and the other classes following. You are familiar with the fact that some of the higher mathematical curves are infinite in extent, and that part which can be seen is but a small portion. I think these curves representing the students are infinite—those between the walls and which we can see are those now here, but beyond is a great line still coming—a line without end.

You may wonder where the faculty is since I have placed the students in the roof. Well, this is the students' day. It is the day when they can be seen and the faculty drops out of sight. Under this floor on which you so safely sit today are great pillars and girders which by their weight and strength support this vast body of people. They are the faculty, great and strong and able, and they can be trusted to care for and educate all whom this great state and sister states confidently place in their charge. This roof slopes in all directions and by that fact we are instructed to distribute without partiality the blessings which Heaven bestows upon us so graciously.

Mr. President, I have the honor as chairman of the building committee, to place this key in your hands which opens the doors of this great building, a symbol of the great University in which we take pride. And as the doors of this University are opened and closed may the children of our state and our land go in and out and find meat and drink.

Alexander McLean, President of the Board of Trustees, accepted the keys on behalf of the University and responded in a speech full of humor on the significance and uses of the key, past and present.

The Regent in introducing Senator Mathews, who followed, stated that in his biennial pilgrimages to the Illinois legislature he had always received the hearty co-operation of the members from this district, and that the Senator from this district, by his wide knowledge of affairs, had rendered valuable service.

Senator Mathews spoke briefly of some of the difficulties in getting appropriations and related several amusing anecdotes therewith. He assurred the audience, however, that the people of the state were heartily interested in the institution, and that it was becoming easier every year to get the needed appropriations.

The Regent called attention to the fact that the Military Hall was a product of the institution, that the architect (Professor N. C. Ricker, '72,) and the master builder (Geo. W. Parker) were both of the University, and that the University was able to fill such contracts anywhere in the state.

The following orations were to have been given by members of the graduating class, but the last six orators were prevented from speaking on account of the rain:

REGENT'S RECEPTION.

On account of the very inclement weather, the annual reception by the Regent and his wife in the University parlors, Wednesday evening, was not largely attended, those present being mostly Alumni.

THE DIRECTORY.

The addresses and occupations of the Alumni, which are given in this directory are divided into three classes, thus:

1.	Burwash, Milo B.	Farmer,	Savoy.
2.	Davis, John J.	PHYSICIAN,	RACINE, WIS.
3.	Drewry, Henry N.	Physician,	Effingham.

The first class gives the occupations and addresses of the Alumni from whom the Secretary has heard directly since April .15th, 1890. Any changes made therein have not been reported to the Secretary.

The second class includes the addresses of those of whom the Secretary has indirect but more or less trustworthy information.

Of the third class, the Secretary has heard nothing. The addresses given in this class are taken from the directory published last year.

In the class of 1890, the residence addresses given are those given in the University catalogue. They are the home addresses. The postoffice addresses given for this class are believed to be correct or soon to be so.

Please examine this directory and report any mistakes. There are many addresses which are unknown or not known to be correct, which can only be obtained through the co-operation of other Alumni.

It will probably be several years before a fairly complete list of correct addresses and occupations can be obtained. Once obtained, it should be comparatively easy, with the co-operation of all the Alumni, to keep the list reasonably correct. Ultimate success depends almost entirely upon the efforts of each Alumnus.

INTRODUCTORY.

While the success of our Alma Mater can never be measured by money alone, yet, doubtless to many of the Alumni the following list of appropriations will be of interest, showing as it does that the people appreciate the effort to establish a higher plane of intellectual culture.

The appropriations made by the General Assembly for the University of Illinois, were as follows:

First, a bill was passed authorizing the State Treasurer to pay over to the Trustees of the University all funds accruing to the State from the United States on account of the so-called Morrill College Aid Bill. The authority of the Legislature was needed in order to carry into effect the provisions of the act of Congress. This bill applies to the payments of the years 1889, '90, '91 and '92, in all four years pay amounting to $66,000, to be used prior to Sept. 1, 1891.

Second, a bill was passed appropriating from the State Treasury the following sums:

	PER ANNUM.	FOR TWO YEARS.
For taxes on lands in Minnesota	$ 1,600	$ 3,200
For repairs and improvements	2,500	5,000
For mechanical shops	2,000	4,000
For apparatus and material	1,500	3,000
For books and publications	1,000	2,000
For collections of natural history	500	1,000
For salaries of instructors	20,000	40,000
For rebuilding barn destroyed by fire		2,500
For heating apparatus for Military Hall		3,500
For furniture		1,000
For Natural History Building and Museum		60,000
For heating and furnishing same		10,000
Total		$135,200

The total amount of money obtained through these acts, and to be used before the first of September, 1893, is $201,200. This does not include $15,000 per annum from the United States for the Experimental Station, nor $7,800 per annum from the State for the State Laboratory of Natural History.

BACCALAUREATE.

The Baccalaureate sermon was delivered by the Regent to the Class of 1891, at three o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 7th, and was a scholarly and able address. The text was I. Kings, XIX:12, "A still, small voice."

Reference was made to the time when the Prophet Elijah, on the mount, was witness to the tornado and the earthquake and the fire, in none of which was God found, and then heard the voice of God giving to him direction in the still small voice. This voice comes to all men. It is the voice of conscience, and properly heeded it is the voice of God.

Is there a conscience? Are its monitions attended with authority? The answer to the first question comes from the affirmative deliverances made by every man's consciousness. Everyone feels the presence of a guilty conscience, as certainly as he knows that he feels and wills, loves and hopes. All systems of ethics, all enactments of law, all administrations of justice, rest upon the accepted knowledge that men recognize the dictates of a common conscience. The few exceptions, if any are found, no more prove the common lack of conscience, than the few who are color-blind prove that color is absent from natural light. While conscience varies in its utterances as to minor points, its approval of the cardinal virtues is absolute and uniform.

That these deliverances of conscience are the statements of eternal verities is proven by the concurrent judgments of all mankind by their uniformity and consistency with each other, and with all recognized truth; by their central and fundamental relationships to all truth, innate and revealed; by the fact that all human law looks up to these deliverances for support. Such was the law which the great apostle referred to, when he spoke of the law written in men's hearts, and which everywhere in the Holy Scriptures is referred to as a divine guide for the action of wise and righteous men. This view is not negatived by the fact too well known, that conscience may be enfeebled or perverted. The man who lacks conscience, if such men there be, has descended from the level of mankind, and has found himself on the plane of the brute creation. The animal has many qualities of a spiritual kind akin to those of man: sensations, wills, loves, hates, memory, imagination; but he has no cognizance of good or evil, of right or wrong. A dog can never break the Decalogue.

Conscience can not have found its place in the human soul by any process of development. It must have been planted there from a Divine source. It is the evidence of his Divine origin, and the suggestion of his immortality.

Conscience is not in itself an adequate ruler of the world. There is a warfare between conscience and sin, producing weakness, deficiency. Conscience needs the reinforcement of constant discipline and Divine law.

With some personal applications, counsels, and farewells, the address closed.

The Alumni report for 1891 was issued about the first of September, a copy being sent to each Alumnus for whom any address whatever could be obtained. A meeting of the Banquet Committee has already been held, and the members are planning to make the next year's meeting a success, and a pleasure to all who attend. It has been suggested that the members of each class plan to have a class reunion during the commencement week, and that an effort be made to have old students not graduates, as many as possible, attend the exercises.

ALUMNI EXERCISES.

Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock a large audience assembled in the Chapel to listen to the literary programme of the Alumni. The exercises were opened with a piano duet by Misses Beach and Beidler, after which Dr. Peabody welcomed the Alumni in graceful and fitting words. He also gave a brief sketch of the progress made during the year, both in intellectual and financial facilities, and closed with hearty wishes for the continued prosperity of the association.

After a song by the Glee Club, Myrtle E. Sparks, '89, Vice-President of the association, because of the unavoidable absence of the President, replied to the welcome.

Mrs. O. F. Spaulding then favored the audience with a vocal solo.

Geo. R. Shawhan, '75, then gave the following address:

INTELLECTUAL CULTURE AND MORALITY.

We are a restless, discontented people. All the years of our national life have been passed in moving from place to place, in working at this and at that, always hoping to attain to better things, yet ever unsatisfied with the results and still striving for something more. It would seem that all the energy of our grand old Anglo-Saxon Race, confined so long within narrow limits, had suddenly burst forth refusing all further restraint. Men can no longer abide in the old order. They can not be content following the quiet ways of their fathers. No one wishes to stay in the old homestead. Even our girls after finishing their education expect to "go west" and take a claim.

For us this unrest is most noticeable in the domains of education and religion. No young man of spirit can think of submitting to the creed of his grand-parents, but regardless of the fact that he may not be well acquainted with it, shouts lustily for "revision." The plain sensible sermon on the practical duties of life, inculcating reverence toward God and charity toward man, is trite and common-place and must be supplanted by discussive rhetoric on such topics as "Our Flag," "The Higher Criticism," or "The Essential Unity of the Human Race." We must have new viands for our religious repast as often as we import a new fruit.

In the educational field we see the same changeful, restless spirit. New theories are developed every day. Countless experiments are made, and the results heralded as a late discovery of the long-wished-for, long-sought Royal Road to learning. Like those of vivisection, these experiments are performed upon living bodies, nay, worse, upon the palpitating hearts and the impressible nerves of children. The rough old roads to eminence in knowledge and intellectual discipline, cut with so much toil through the hard rocks of the mathematics, or traversed with so much pain, over the barren deserts of the dead languages, have been abandoned for pleasant excursions with the Goddess of Nature. With her as a guide the young aspirant may ramble in the shady dells beside the purling brooks, gathering the brightest flowers, and like a truant boy may chase the gold-winged butterflies through the whole long day.

In the most philosophical and correct educational circles it now seems to be an assumed fact that a child is stone-blind until the teacher trains him "How to See;" that he can not feel until "Ye pedagogue" teaches him the systematic use of his nerves. We assume that the child is wrongly constructed and that he will not do the proper things without the interference of the teacher. We ignore the fact that the child is constantly seeing, hearing, feeling, and tasting everything and at all times. The use he makes of the impressions of the outer world received by means of his senses; the reference of his sensations to their proper objects; the correct adjustment of all the parts of that wonderful duplication of this external world of nature he is day by day building up in that most mysterious of all realms,—his mind;—these may constitute the work of the educator. Not to teach him to see, for he can see, and does see, long before the teacher finds him, but to know what he sees, and to perceive its relations to what he has seen before; to form correct judgments and to deduce proper conclusions; these indeed are the fields in which he needs the teacher's aid.

The child is experimenting. More than all others he is "putting questions to nature" and storing up in his wonderful memory, most active and most unreasoning at this time, all her answers. How important those answers should be correctly interpreted Not to cause him to use his senses, but to aid him in correctly interpreting their reports is the work of the teacher.

The foregoing represent some of the many errors into which we have fallen in our eager desire to find something new, or better than we had before. It is the common mistake of seeing but half the truth, and contenting ourselves with its partial statement.

So also, in the early days of our country, it is said that men came here to secure freedom of religion. That was a partial statement only of the truth. They did come to secure religious freedom for themselves, but were not much concerned about religious freedom for others, as Rodger Williams and Ann Hutchinson, with a host beside, can testify. They had believed certain forms and statements to be true. When forbidden in the mother country to practice the one, or to believe the other, they were ready to resist unto death. But when one with clearer vision, seeing the whole truth came, proclaiming that the civil magistrate had no right to interfere and determine a man's duty to God, they resented it as a doctrine dangerous to the state, subversive of society and destructive of all true religion. But as generation after generation passed away, more and mors men came to see the whole truth, until at last their ideas of the functione of government culminated in that famous declaration: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute a new government, organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

Though it cannot be supposed that all the supporters of the Declaration were consistent in developing all their beliefs into practical living, yet most were fully persuaded that it was not the business of the state to teach men religion. They discriminated clearly between duty to God and duty to the state, or of citizens of the state toward each other. The first was sacred ground on which no unhallowed foot of man could tread. The reasons and conscience of each, enlightened by revelation, or darkened by superstition, must be absolutely free, responsible only to the Creator of all. In the social domain, in the domain of morality, where one man's rights and his duties to others must be considered, they placed the true sphere of government.

Religion, or our duties toward God must be free, but in morality each must "look not only upon his own things, but also upon the things of others." In all our history of more than a century, not a single instance can be found of our government's trespassing on the domain of religion. No man has suffered for conscience sake. No man has given of his substance for the support of any religious institution against his consent. No man has been compelled to attend any special form of worship, nor even to recognize God in any manner whatever. But in the domain of morality, where man meets man, where the apparent rights of one seem to overlap or trespass upon the rights of another, we are not so clear. For three-quarters of a century thousands and millions of our fellow-men were deprived of all their rights to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Only the costliest war, both in blood and treasure, the modern world has seen, was able to rid us of the dark blot of slavery. The power of combined capital, to oppress the laborer by reducing his wages, or by enhancing the cost of his living, has not even yet been brought into subjection to that higher law which declares that all men are created equal and that governments were instituted to secure men their just rights.

The tremendous power of the liquor interest to influence legislation and to make governments, state and national, subserve corrupt and wicked personal ends, under the guise of personal liberty, warns us that all are not yet lovers of liberty who flaunt her colors so boastfully. The destruction of the poor man's right to vote according to his best light by the domination of his rich employer, and the trickery and crime so often resorted to by the intelligent to prevent the exercise of the only power which makes an ignorant man the peer of the wisest; the banding together of immigrants of foreign births to promote old-world quarrels; all these and many more tell us in every day's paper that all men are not yet considered equal by many of our own citizens; that the theory of liberty and of equal rights proclaimed by our fathers is not yet well understood by many who claim citizenship in our fair land; and that men are still deficient in many of the first axioms of the science of civil and social life.

Churchmen and schoolmen, lawyers and politicians, as well as the plain citizens, all see and deprecate these evils. With one accord they turn to the common school as the one great instrument by which our diverse populations can be made homogeneous, in desire and aim, and by means of which all can be trained into good citizenship. If all mingle in the same plays, learn the same language, study the history of our common country, learn to recite the glorious deeds of our heroes, it is fondly hoped that all will grow up patriotic sons of America, each mindful of his neighbor's rights, as well as tenacious of his own. But this again is an attempt "to make bricks without straw," an expectation based upon the obscure statements of half-truths.

To the reflective mind, nothing is so baseless, if we continue on our present course, failing to teach the youth either to fear God or to regard man. In our desire to free religion, which considers only man's relations to his Maker, from the domain of government, we have struck from the curriculum of our schools all basis for the teaching of morality and the relations of man to man. In our haste to be free from creeds, we have erased the golden rule. In our anxiety to allow liberty of conscience we have left our children in total ignorance of God and the requirements He has laid upon us all. We have failed to teach the ten commandments, which furnish the basis of all morality because they are contained in that book which is the fountain of all our religion. Nay more, we have gone so far as to exclude even the reading of that book from most of our schools, though all know that everyone, infidel, heathen, Mahommedan, Jew, and Christian, acknowledge when they are competent to decide, that it contains the purest morality of the world, that it teaches the only way in which men can live peaceably in organized communities, and that all the honor given to God on this earth to day, as well as all the regard for the liberties and rights of man now dominant on this planet were drawn from its pages. We never knew a man who revered and honored his Creator in the spirit that book inculcates, who did not also respect men.

To eradicate the evils of our social system we are depending upon the cultivation of the intellect alone. We refuse to develop that faculty called conscience, which approves our conduct when we do that which we believe to be right and condemns us when we do that which we believe to be wrong.

Some of us teach morality and one's duty toward his neighbors from the ancient mythology, and the fairy stories of medieval times. We fill the child's mind with falsehood and expect it to be forever after a well of pure water springing up into an everlasting life of truth and duty. Others are trying to deduce a code of morals from the works of Nature, where "might alone makes right," and where, according to her greatest disciples, none but the fittest survive the constant struggle for existence. From sources like these they expect to produce good citizens, kind men; forbearing and, if need be forgiving, earnestly desiring to live in peace with all their neighbors and to be obedient to all the laws of the state. Vain hope! "Men are still building for themselves cisterns, broken cisterns that can hold no water."

Until we cease to believe that intellectual culture alone will produce good morals, we cannot hope to eradicate the evils we now suffer. The Ancient world pursued this method for thousands of years, yet never succeeded. To get all that could be reached and to keep all obtained seems to have been the rule of both nations and individuals. Works of charity, asylums for the unfortunate, hospitals for the sick, were utterly unknown in the palmiest days of intellectual culture. The pride of superior intellect, of superior knowledge, is proverbial. The intellect alone makes man a tyrant, eager to use his great gifts to trample upon his fellow-men—yea, to make them stepping stones for his vaulting ambition. The great conquerors, Alexander, Cæsar, Napoleon, are examples of the greatest intellects the world has ever seen. By strength of will and breadth of comprehension they were enabled to organize weaker men into tremendous forces for their own aggrandizement.

Can anyone picture with his liveliest imagination more heartless or more savage beasts than these? An insanity of rage or fear may incite the lion or the tiger to a carnival of destruction, but neither rage nor fear was necessary to arouse these to slaughter and rapine. In the quiet of their closets, coolly and deliberately these cultivated men planned the robbery and murder of thousands, nay of millions, and without hesitation or faltering carried out their relentless purposes.

The world has groaned for six thousand years under the terrible despotism of the conscienceless intellect, heedless of any question or right except its boundless power to do, and exulting in its vast ability to know and to execute. Nine-tenths of the human race have been its slaves dying by millions under the whips of their cruel task-master. The mighty pyramids of the Nile, cut from the solid rock before recorded history begins, the dust heaps of the Euphrates, where once the mighty walls of old Babylon towered to Heaven, all tell the same story of the unspeakable crimes of the unrestrained intellect of man.

The boasted liberty of the Greek republics, bright with intelligence and resplendent in beauty, was only the liberty of the few to oppress and to subsist upon the many. Like Parhasius, any Greek could press the poisoned links into the quivering flesh of his captives without a tremor, yea, with joy, if by that means he could advance his interests or add to his glory.

If we turn to Rome, that iron kingdom that broke in pieces and destroyed the world, we read the same story of wrong and oppression until the heart sickens and wearies of the bloody recital. What nation produced greater intellects, more determined and heroic wills? None. Yet what nation, after conquering the world, so turned upon itself, and eating out its own heart died a suicide's death? None Fit representatives they whose ancestors were nursed by wolves. Wolfish men they were who ravaged the world and rejoiced in blood and cruelty. And when all the world was conquered and lay submissive at their feet, still wolves in heart, they set up the gladiators to show the servile populace through what scenes the Roman soldier must pass to fame and fortune. Our minds turn in horror, our hearts sicken and revolt at the disgusting spectacle of men made in the image of God transforming themselves into beasts.

Is it not time, my friends, for us, in this nineteenth century, to stop, to consider if we are going the way of all the earth. There is but one hope, but one way of escape. We have tried all others and found them of no avail. Instead of a staff of strength each has but proved itself a broken reed, piercing the hand that held it.

It has been said, "we must educate." "We must educate or we must perish by our own prosperity." But how shall we educate? Do we want magnificent specimens of muscular humanity, without intellectual culture or moral refinement? Shall we add to it that discipline of the soul that enables one at times to submit his own opinions, nay his own life even to another, to secure some anticipated greater good? The Roman produced all these in perfection. No hardier or more enduring soldiers ever followed a flag than those that carried the Republican and Imperial eagles from the heart of Asia to the shores of the Atlantic and the Arctic. Shall we add to the matchless strength and iron will of these, the fine sense of the beautiful in Nature and Art which characterized the noblest period of Grecian history? Shall we add to our ideal man the learning of the Egyptian and the deep philosophical thinking of the later Greek? With all these combined shall we have them the model man, with whom we should like to live, the man who has reached the highest point of development of which he is capable? No. A thousand times no. Not one of us would care to be a citizen of old Rome, even when from her seven hills she ruled the world. Not a woman here would for a moment harbor a wish to dwell in Athens, either in the heroic or in her historic age.

They lacked the higher moral nature which connects man with the Divine. Having no conception of a God higher than themselves in morality; they found it impossible to rise, they lacked the stimulus to good living which comes by seeing the example of a good life, and they died.

Shall we borrow our morality of them? Or shall we go to India to learn of Budda or Gantama? The condition of half the race, the condition of woman, forbids. A religion that tramples upon one-half the human race, that gives it no hope in this world or any other, can not be the voice of God, the Creator of all. There is but one source in the recorded history of man from which we can hope to learn the morality which will humanize this great world of savagery and barbarism.

The Jew alone of all the nations of the earth has developed the higher nature of man. His home has always been a true home, sweetened with the love of wife and children; the one a helpmeet for him, given of God and sacred; the other, gifts from the same source, prized above all jewels, the joy of his manhood, the stay and solace of his declining years. The Jew was taught to honor one God, the Maker of Heaven and Earth, and his neighbor as himself. Narrow at first, confined to his immediate relatives, yet in time his ideas and teachings were widened, until the Nazarene made them world-wide, and they have come to us. There is no morality like his. He teaches us how to live together in peace and amity. The hope he sets before us is of that happy time when "nations shall beat their swords into plough-shares and their spears into pruning-hooks, learning war no more."

There is no morality in the world comparable to that of Jesus of Nazareth. We are cultivating the intellect, often forgetting the higher nature that links us to the Divine. No young man in college can afford to make this mistake. Every man who has left college, sees examples in affairs of life of those who have not learned to care for their fellows. The states' prisons are full of these men. Those of us who are teachers should correct the errors into which we have fallen, and return to the only source of true morality this earth affords, the words of him who spake as never man spake. Let us cultivate that grander part of man's nature that makes him indeed Godlike, and do all as teachers of men and students of God's universe to hasten the glad time when this earth shall be redeemed, when man shall again walk upright and with unclouded brow in the presence of his creator, when the morning stars shall again sing together, and all the sons of God shall once more shout for joy.

Fred D. Rugg, '82, then rendered a vocal solo, which closed the programme.

UNIVERSITY ANTHEM.

Written by Dr. J. M. Gregory, and sung at the Inauguration of the University, March 11th, 1868. Resung at the Commemorative Exercises June 8th, 1892.

PORTUGESE HYMN.

I.

We hail thee! Great Fountain of learning and light;
There's life in thy radiance, there's hope in thy might;
We greet now thy dawning, but what singer's rhyme
Shall follow thy course down the ages of time?

II.

O'er homes of the millions, o'er fields of rich toil,
Thy science shall shine as the Sun shines on soil,
And Learning and Labor—fit head for fit hand—
Shall crown with twin glories our broad prairie land.

III.

And as generations, in the grand march of time,
Shall fill the long ages with numbers sublime,
Thy portals shall throng with the lowly and great,
Thy Science-crowned children shall bless all the State.

IV.

Then hail thee! blest fountain of learning and light,
Shine on in thy glory, rise ever in might;
We greet now thy dawning; but ages to come
Must tell of thy grandeur, and shout Harvest Home.

ALUMNI DAY.

The entire day Tuesday was given up to the Alumni. In the morning four companies of veterans drilled under the command of Professor E. Snyder; Adjutant. Alfred Gregory; Captains, S. Cecil Stanton, Arthur Swannell, S. Philbrick, and H. L. McCune. After the battalion drill followed a competitive drill by the individual companies. S. W. Stratton's company was awarded the prize.

ALUMNI PICNIC.

One of the most enjoyable features of the week was the Alumni picnic lunch, tendered the Alumni Association and their friends by the Faculty and resident Alumni of Champaign and Urbana. The original plan was to have it upon the university lawn, but a slight rain necessitated going into the main building, where tables were arranged in the long hall of the first floor. Nearly five hundred sat down to a very inviting lunch. Much credit is due to Miss Mary Williamson, '87, who had charge of the affair.

ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING.

The annual business meeting of the association was called to order in Philomathean hall at 3 p. m., the President, W. A. Heath, in the chair. After a song by the glee club, the president presented Dr. J. M. Gregory, who gave a brief but interesting sketch of the early days of the university.

The following letter from Professor J. C. Pickard, regretting his inability to be present, was read by Mrs. H. E. Robbins:

MY DEAR FRIENDS: If the wings of my thought would but serve as well this corporal substance which doth too grossly close me in, I should now be with you in real presence, and, looking into your faces, get the inspiration that touches the heart and lips. There are of you twenty-one classes that have completed full courses of study here. Of these nineteen were more or less under my instruction. You became much endeared to me in the years of our association as leader, and led in the the field of English letters, beside streams flowing down crystal-pure from high mountain springs, and through meadows blooming with flowers of perennial beauty and fragrance. Since you passed beyond my touch into the ways—perhaps straighter and thornier—of active life, my interest in you has not lessened.

My happiness, therefore, would be exceeding great if I could but speak to you, hear your voices, grasp your hands. That privilege is denied me; but Heaven be praised, memory holds her seat, and thought is free and fleet. And so your faces, young and fair as formerly, come to me, and in "my mind's eye" I see you. So seen, you are once more my boys and girls —manly and womanly boys and girls. I thank God that you were that to me once. It is my pride and my exceeding joy in these my later days. I may not have taught you the "beggarly elements" of English grammar. I may not have filled the measure of your desires, for I did not fill the measure of my own in your behalf. But I can recall nothing that I wish untaught, and you will bear me witness that I never taught you disloyalty to Heaven or Truth, or Duty or Alma Mater.

And I bear you witness that with no irreverent feet you trod the ground hallowed by the highest and the saintliest geniuses of the English race; that with bared heads and earnest eyes, and eager ears, you stood before and listened to the voices of the English-speaking gods, till you felt within your souls the breath of their inspiration.

Whatever your recipient minds then took in from Chaucer, or Spenser, from Shakespere, or Milton, or Wordsworth, cannot have been lost even in the storm and stress of active life. Whatever the rush and roar of the conflict in which you are engaged, through the strife and tumult, there must sometimes, come "borne inward to the soul," the sweet and holy, sanative and restful tones of their voices. Such testimony has been given me by some of you, and has assured me that my labors were not lost.

At the bidding of my fancy the years come back one by one, and I see you marching in class-ranks by fifties, by twenties, by tens. 'Tis a goodly array. None goodlier can be seen in any other college ground. Not Harvard nor Yale can afford to affect superiority. Should one venture to point to inferior numbers, remember the fable of the lioness who was reproached for being the mother of but one whelp. "Yes, one," she replied, "but 'tis a lion."

Surely, surely, if the test of an institution is the men it produces, then may the University of Illinois, with head erect and eyes beaming with pride, exclaim: "Behold my sons and daughters—my men and women! These are my jewels, "stars in the crown of my rejoicing!"

A goodly array indeed. But, ah, your ranks are not full. I see gaps here and there, where one and another have fallen; rather, they are not, for God took them. Allen, Miss Ashby, Barrett, Bartholf, Miss Clark, Miss Estep, Faulkner, Miss Lawhead, Mann, McPherson, Milton, Palmer, Porter, Richards, Rutan, Spradling, Teeple, Travis, Wilde.

We call, but they answer not, except in spirit tones that reach the spirit ear. God touched them with his finger, and beckoning called them to "come up higher," and they, "ready in heart," obeyed the summons. Yet, others who were of you, we see paling under the touch of an icy hand and passing from sight, before reaching with you the day of graduation. Tearful eyes attest your loving memory.

You, the living, it is well that you come to this festival. Your hearts must swell with pride and gratitude to-day. With your first honored Regent, Dr. Gregory—name, person, dear to all—his eye not dimmed now by age, but by the deep feeling which this scene inspires—with him you look upon the noble growth of the vine which his right hand planted, and which to the end of time shall bear precious clusters.

You have come home. "Home, Home!" I cannot sing the tune, yet the song is in my heart as it is in yours.

Home! How much it means to us, when the word, in thoughtful moments, sinks down into the chambers of the soul and is settled there. It means a spot lying out somewhere toward the horizon-verge of memory, bright with sunshine, vocal with music, sweet with fragrance. It means parents, brothers, sisters, united—unified by the bond of affection. More than all the rest, it means a mother—her watchful assiduities, her smiles, her caresses, her sympathy, and her benediction when you left her embrace and the parental hearthstone, and with reluctant feet (not too reluctant, perhaps) you crossed the threshold, went down the path to the gate, and through the gate into the great highway of the world without—so wide, so wide! A mother into whose heart you were born and from whose heart-clasp you can never find release; the mother who so stole into your heart and impressed your being, that wherever you are, whatever you are doing, you feel her presence, and know her tender eyes are upon you; the mother whose love is like an over-arching sky, always sending down "sweetest influences."

To return to that mother's side when one is weary and worn, is to unburden one's self and to find refreshment and rest.

You know what I would say. You have come home to your mother, ever-loving, never forgetful. She gives you glad greeting, and would have you stay and rest yourselves awhile before returning to your wrestling with the world. She is glad to believe that hitherto you have not striven in vain.

But give her now some account of yourselves. What have you been doing? or, she would rather ask, "What have you been?"

Men have been variously classified. Charles Lamb on his stool in the counting house sees only borrowers and lenders. A somewhat puzzled theologian finds saints, sinners and the Beecher family. Some political editors and politicians are grieved to see Democrats, Republicans and Alliance men, especially in Kansas. John St. John discovered wets and drys.

As I look just now I see two classes, Drivers and Drifters. Yes, a third I have seen, Wharf-bumpers, taking the name from what may be seen in Atlantic harbors. The Wharf-bumper never drives, never so much as drifts. It gets built but never hoists sail or weighs anchor; but without ambition to cast loose, at the mercy of an unresting tide, it lazily bumps, bumps, bumps evermore, more pitiful sight by far than a wreck.

The Drifter, as if for a voyage, set from somewhere, but is bound for nowhere. It is not a "painted ship upon a painted ocean," but a real bark bravely rigged it seems, riding without anchor, oh! so delightfully, on the breast of Neptune, gently heaving as in sleep. No need of pilot, or compass, or chart. The sky is peace, the air is balm. Why take daily reckoning? It goes drifting, drifting, for there are currents in the air and under the placid face of the waters, currents ever shifting in the restless main. Luckless drifter! Cross currents carry it hither and thither, till some mighty ocean stream seizes it, drives it, lifts it and lets it settle to pound out its bottom on an unseen reef. The best we can hope for it—is it then really the best?—is that it drift into the Sargasso sea.

The Driver is the man who drives. He is not driven. He is the master, not the mastered. He holds the lines, and will take no man's dust on his road—theologic, civic, legal, medical, or what not. He does not lag behind his age, but strives to lead it. He wishes to head the procession (if only at a mock funeral),disregarding no man's rights, and without a breach of the peace. He drives to a fixed goal from which his eye is never taken. He has a mission, and is straitened till it be accomplished.

He is, if a wise driver, never self-indulgent. He does not even, like Gothe, "selfishly seek self-culture." He hears some high call of the "stern daughter of the voice of God" to duty outside himself, to which he dares not, will not fail to respond.

I need not ask to which class you belong. You are no wharf-bumpers, nor are you mere drifters without purpose and high aspirings. Your Alma Mater believes you to be Drivers. They equipped you fairly (allow me the freedom of the sea once more), saw you glide down the launchways, hoist sail and steer away upon the great deep. She hears to-day with glad ears from your lips the story of prosperous voyages. She knows that you have not—as George Eliot says Heine did—"pursue the omission" of your calling. She notes too with pleasure that you have not driven with such feverish anxiety that you have become like the knowing canon of Dusseldorf, of whom Heine says, "when I last saw him, he was made up of nothing but mind and plasters."

Your mother augurs well for your future from your past, and blesses herself with the assurance that you will never know shipwreck, though clouds gather blackness, and the sky comes down to wrestle with the sea, but that each of you, as a goodly vessel richly freighted with the treasures of a useful and happy life, will make the celestial port, and rest upon the sea which is as a "sea of glass mingled with fire." Such is her faith—such her prayer.

Fred D. Rugg then favored the audience with a vocal solo, after which the regular business was taken up.

Numerous others were also about at some time during the week, who neglected to record at headquarters.

It was moved and seconded that as the minutes of the preceding meeting had been published in the last Alumni report, the reading of the minutes should be dispensed with. Carried.

Moved and seconded that the members of the class of '92 be made members of this Association upon the payment of the every initiation fee. Carried.

The President then addressed the meeting, touching briefly upon the subjects of the Young Men's Christian Association, Athletics, and Scholarship subjects; he said, while being of importance to the University, they should be of importance to Alumnus.

The Association then proceeded to the election of officers:

S. W. Parr nominated for President, W. L. Abbott, '84, and he was elected by acclamation.

W. N. Butler, '79, was elected Vice-President also by acclamation.

Myrtle E. Sparks, '89, the Secretary and Treasurer filling

W. H. Stockham, '85, presented the following resolution, which was adopted after a thorough discussion:

WHEREAS, This University has now no permanent headquarters in Chicago; and,

WHEREAS, It is desirable that such headquarters should be provided, where those connected with the University can gather or meet as occasion may require. Now be it therefore

Resolved, That a board of eleven members be appointed to determine the best method of obtaining said headquarters, and to institute them in such manner and kind as may to them seem advisable, and may be possible; and

Resolved, That said board be empowered to provide for its own organization; provided, that it shall report to this Association each year its progress during the year preceding.

The following, introduced as an amendment to the above, was tabled:

Provided, That this committee bring no expense upon this Association.

The President appointed as members of this committee, W. H. Stockham, H. W. Mahan, S. W. Stratton, S. W. Parr, Lorado Taft, Geo. W. Morgan, Henry Beardsley, R. R. Conklin, W. A. Heath, C. S. Bouton, and W. L. Abbott.

The following resolution was introduced and adopted:

Resolved, That we express by a rising vote our appreciation of the services of the resident Alumni, the Faculty, and citizens, in the elegant hospitality shown us.

Moved and seconded that a vote of thanks be entended to Dr. Gregory, Prof. Pickard, to the Glee Club, the Band, and F. D. Rugg. Carried.

The question of admitting to the Association students who had left the University without graduating was brought up, and voted down as being unconstitutional.

Mrs. Scovell introduced the following resolution, which was adopted:

WHEREAS, It is with pleasure that we view the growing departments here, and to each and every one we say only a hearty "God speed," but to those of us who were here from '74 to '80 there is something missing. Where is the trained mind and warm heart to take Mrs. Gregory's place? Is it that we girls did not cherish our privileges—those rare privileges—blessings which we feel every day of our lives. Surely it might so seem did we not testify to them. Therefore,

Resolved, That in view of the fact of the large number of girls in attendance at the University each year, we recommend to the Trustees that a representative woman be made a member of the Faculty.

F. D. Pierce, '83, introduced the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That in view of the importance of technical education among the citizens of this state, we memorialize the legislature for larger appropriations for the support of these departments of study here, and for more buildings.

The following resolution was introduced by W. E. Bridge, '83:

Resolved, That we, the Alumni of the University of Illinois here assembled, realizing that the University stands at the head of the educational interests of the great State of Illinois, and realizing that its growth and prosperity will inure to the good of all our people, and realizing that the Regency of the University is the most important office by which these results may be obtained, we hereby express our confidence in the wisdom of the Board of Trustees of our University, that they will spare no pains or means in securing a man of broad culture, ripe scholarship, and eminent executive ability, to fill the office of Regent of this University. We hope that the broadest growth may be encouraged in each of the several departments of the University, and, from the eminence already attained, that the progress and prosperity of the University may ever be advanced.

The resolution was adopted.

F. A. Parsons, '75, proposed the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of twenty Alumni be appointed for the purpose of working to secure a state law providing for an annual tax for the purpose of defraying the current expenses of the University of Illinois.

M. A. Scovell, '75, proposed the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That we recommend to the consideration of the Board of Trustees the feasibility of granting the higher degrees of Ph. D., etc., as is customary in many allied colleges and universities.

Mrs. M. L. Parsons, '78, introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That this association unite with and the Secretary be instructed to make application for membership in the Western Collegiate Alumni Association.

The resolution was adopted.

By S. W. Parr, '84, it was moved that this association request the Trustees to place in the hands of their Secretary the keeping of a correct Alumni list. The motion was carried.

A NEW BUILDING FOR THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Henry M. Beardsley, '79, introduced the matter of the proposed new building for the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations of the University, giving a few forcible arguments why the Alumni should lend a hand in that work. He was followed by Prof. I. O. Baker, '74, and H. W. Mahan, '76. Their remarks brought out the facts that already the students had indicated their earnestness by subscriptions amounting to over $10,000.

After the remarks of these gentlemen there was an immediate demand for an opportunity to offer subscriptions. A motion was made that S. W. Parr take the pledges, and in a few minutes forty-six persons pledged the sum of $3,200, ranging in amounts from $500 to $10, and averaging over $70 each. The sentiment seemed to be hearty and unanimous that this movement was timely and that such a building as proposed would add greatly to the equipment and fair name of the University as well as meet many positive needs in the student life of today for which there is now no adequate provision.

As the amount thus far announed had been made in about fifteen minutes, it was evident that only a beginning had been made.

The hour being late it was moved that a committee be appointed to solicit further supscriptions and carry forward the movement in behalf of the association. It is understood that the subscriptions are payable quarterly, and unless otherwise arranged for to begin as near Nov. 1, 1892, as practicable.

Chair appointed as such committee, F. D. Rugg, S. W. Parr and F. H. Lloyd.

Moved to adjourn.

In the evening the three literary societies, Alethenai, Philomathean and Adelphic, tendered receptions in their respective halls. Old associations were renewed and the past brought vividly into the present.

The committee on legislative action appointed by President Abbott is as follows:

At the close of the commemorative exercises the Alumni repaired to the Chapel where the Commencement dinner was held. The Chapel had been beautifully decorated, by Mr. Baker, with the University and class colors.

A congratulatory message was received from Hon. R. P. Morgan, one of the trustees who was at the time in San Francisco, which was read at the banquent table and warmly received. Telegrams were also received from J. O. Ockerson, '73, St. Louis; Jno. D. Gill, '76, Duluth, Minn.; Geo. N. Savage, '80, Olympia, Wash., and others.

After dinner the following toasts were given and responded to. Lack of space prevents the printing of the responses, except the one by Dr. J. N. Mathews, '72, "The Past:

"The Mind Shall Banquet Though the Body Pine."

TOAST MASTER, - - - - - - - - - H. L. MCCUNE.

THE UNIVERSITY—

"When to the sessions of sweet, silent thought I summon up remembrance of things PAST."
DR. J. N. MATHEWS.

"Let us the important NOW employ."
DR. T. J. BURRILL.

"Our story's pride, our FUTURES' dream,
The hope of times unborn." F. M. MCKAY.

HOBBY HORSES, - - - - - - - EFFIE A. MATHERS,

"I had a little hobby horse,
His name was Penny Gray;
His head was made of pea straw,
His tail was made of hay."

"YE OLDEN TIME"—

"Has there any old fellow got mixed with the boys?
If there has, take him out without making a noise."

"YE DORMITORY," - - - - - - - MANFORD SAVAGE,

"YE POLITICS," - - - - - - - - H. W. MAHAN.

COLLEGE WOMEN—A SYMPOSIUM, - - - MARY L. PARSONS.
ALFRED GREGORY, DR. AVIS E. SMITH.

"Then a health and a welcome to a woman once more;
She brings us a passport that laughs at our door;
It is written on crimson—its letters are pearls—
It is countersigned NATURE—So, room for the girls."

THE HUB-BUB, - - - - - - - - C. H. BLACKALL.

"One round of humanity's many-wheeled car,
But up-hill and dowd-hill, through rattle and rub,
Old, true seventy-seveners! we've stuck to our hub!"

ATHLETICS, - - - - - - - SARAH BENNETT.

"To the strong hand and strong head, the capacious lungs and vigorous frame, fall and will always fall, the heavy burdens; and where the heavy burdens fall, the great prizes fall, too."

"THE WORD THAT MAKES US LINGER," - - - H. E. ROBBINS.

"So here's a health in homely rhyme
To our oldest classmate, Father Time!
May our last survivor live to be
As bald and as wise and as tough as he!"

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS.

"Freed for a moment from the chains of toil,
I tread once more thy consecrated soil;
Here at thy feet my old allegiance own,
Thy subject still, and loyal to thy throne."

A TOAST—THE UNIVERSITY—ITS PAST.

The Past of the University.—It does not rise before us like a dream, as once it did before the exalted vision of Ingersoll. No! it is the same yesterday, today and forever. We are old cronies, we and the Past. We are David and Jonathan. We drank from the same canteen. We slept together, we batched together, we boarded together at Potter's. Together we smoked, together we joked, and together we went a-girling. We were comrades then, and have been "hay-foot, straw-foot," from that day to this, and no power can part us now. The Past is always at our elbow, with its broad, cordial hand on our shoulder—its cheeks still glowing, its eyes still blue, and its lips still ardent with brave speech. We are chums and brothers, and quite often we wear each other's clothes. When we slip into the coat of the Past, we always feel so cool and comfortable. It fits us so well, and we can never out-grow it. And its pockets, ah, its pockets are lined with old love-letters, tear-stained and faded, yet fragrant with the summer wooings of long ago, and eloquent with the broken promises of youth.

The Past of the University is our confidential friend. Twenty years ago this week, we met by moonlight on the old Campus and organized a mutual admiration society. We pledged ourselves to stand by each other—to forget all the evil and remember only the good. What joy it has been to carry out that splendid compact.

"The past of the University!" We have seen it grow from a puling baby to the ripe perfection of an Apollo. We were present when the State of Illinois handed the nursing bottle to Dr. Gregory, and we saw him put it coaxingly to the pale lips of the gasping child. We watched the baby grow from day to day. We remember when its first tooth was cut. We remember seeing Profs. Burrill and Snyder, and Shattuck trundling its little carriage over the lawn in the spring sunshine, and shaking a rattle-box in its face. We heard it lisp the alphabet. Later on, we heard it reciting Latin, Mathematics, and Philosophy. Then we saw the Past graduating with billows of flowers breaking into foam at its feet. Then we shook hands and pledged our fealty. A few days ago the Past whispered in our ear, saying, "O, my brother, let us go back—let us go back for a day to the old home, where all pain is Champaign—let us revisit the old scenes, climb the old hills, walk down the old roads, hear the old bells, sing the old songs and clasp the old hands of boyhood." And so we came. Last night the Past was restless, nervous and wakeful, and begged us to croon it to sleep with an old-fashioned lullaby, and leaning back in the moonlight we hummed a homely ditty:

Into a beautiful world we went,
Twenty-four years ago,—
A word of promise and rare content,
Twenty-four years ago:
Over its meadows the west wind blew
Melodies faint as a ring-dove's coo,
And everything had a golden hue,
Twenty-four years ago.

We took no thought of the flight of time,
Twenty-four years ago,—
We stept to the tune of a tinkling rhyme,
Twenty-four years ago;
Over the rim of the morning rose
Glimmering dreams of a high repose
Out on the hills where the laurel grows,
Twenty-four years ago.

Lips were loving, and summers were sweet,
Twenty-four years ago,—
The days were short and the nights were fleet,
Twenty-four years ago;
Beautiful innocent hands were they
That crept up into our own, and lay
There, in a most confiding way,
Twenty-four years ago.

Friends were many and foes were few,
Twenty-four years ago,—
Hands were loyal and hearts were true,
Twenty-four years ago,
Ever among us our Masters went,
Stooped with the weight of a large intent,
Tall-browed tutors, and eloquent,
Twenty-four years ago.

Deep into the pillows of boyhood grew,
Twenty-four years ago,—
Dreams as bright as a May-dawn's dew,
Twenty-four years ago;
Dreams of glory that far outshone
Anything yet that the world had known,
Crowns that fitted our brows alone,
Twenty-four years ago.

Out of that beautiful world we came,
Twenty long years ago,—
With a steady step and a lofty aim,
Twenty long years ago;
And never again did we see the flowers,
Nor hear in the dim, Pierian bowers,
The whispers of hope in that world of ours,
Twenty long years ago.

We find life now, as we found it first,
Twenty long years ago,
When, bird-like, out of the nest we burst,
Twenty long years ago,
Always a worm in the heart of the fruit,
A fly in the flask,—a flaw in the flute—
Some discord never discerned in the lute,
Twenty long years ago.

The way is weary that leads us o'er,
Twenty long years ago,
To the dear old summers that come no more,
Twenty long years ago;
But the far-off future beckons and beams,
And often we see in glimmers and gleams,
The one true life of our boyish dreams,
Twenty long years ago.

May 27, 1892. —James Newton Matthews.

Athletic sports were given at the Athletic park on Wednesday afternoon, which were witnessed by large numbers of the former students.

The closing event in this, the largest and most successful gathering of Alumni which has ever been held, was the informal reception given by the present chapter of the Sigma Chi fraternity to the former members of the same society, at their elegant rooms on Main street, Champaign.

Besides the present members, the following old "Sigs" were noted: Hon. Lafayette Funk, '58, Ohio, Wesleyan, Frank Schlaudeman, F. D. Rugg, A. M. Bridge, David Eichberg, C. M. Russell, H. L. McCune, W. A. Health, G. H, Babcock, S. L. Marshall, and others.

To the Alumni of the University of Illinois:

The retiring President wishes to thank the Trustees, Faculty and Alumni generally for their cordial co-operation in working up our reunion. Most of all, his gratitude is due to the loyal Alumni of Champaign and Urbana, to whom the chief credit belongs for the success of the occasion. He considers it an honor indeed, to have served as your Executive during the year now closed; and if the reunion of '92 may but mark the beginning of an era of greater practical results for the advancement of the University of Illinois, his highest hope and wish will have been granted.

D., Acting Regent, delivered the address to the Class of '93. His subject was "Mastery," which was treated in an extremely forcible manner. His parting words to the graduating class were fraught with kindly interest.

ALUMNI DAY.

ALUMNI BUSINESS MEETING.

The annual business meeting of the Alumni Association was held in the Philomathean Hall at eleven o'clock. Owing to the fact that the Junior contest was going on in the Chapel at the same time, the attendance was small. The meeting was called to order by the president, W. L. Abbott. From a lack of time, the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was dispensed with. The roll call by classes, was responded to as follows:

Class of '72—C. W. Rolfe.
Class of '78—Frank Lloyde, Manford Savage.
Class of '80—George N. Savage.
Class of '81—James E. Armstrong, Mrs. A. N. Talbot, A. N. Talbot.
Class of '83—Mrs. Grace Healy Smith.
Class of '84—W. L. Abbott, S. W. Parr, Mrs. S. W. Parr, George McCluer.
Class of '85—Mrs. Emma Jones Spence, R. L. Dunlap.
Class of '87—Mary Williamson, A. C. Moore.
Class of '88—Ella Connet, Mary McClellan.
Class of '89—Margaret Weston, Lillie Bronson, Myrtle E. Sparks.

CLASS OF '91—Frank Gardner, J. H. Powell.
CLASS OF '92—R. H. Forbes, H. S. Piatt, C. D. McLane, J. P. Gulick.

Reports of committees were called for. In the absence of the chairman, President Abbott reported for the Committee on Legislative Action. The committee had been active in working to secure an amendment to the present state constitution, and when this failed to carry, it was thought useless to work further in this direction. At the request of the Trustees other plans that the committee had formed were abandoned, and all effort was concentrated on obtaining the appropriations asked for. Mr. Abbott also reported that th committee was well organized and had been of assistance to the University. It was moved and seconded that the report be accepted and that the committee be continued. Carried.

In the absence of the chairman of Committee on the Chicago building, President Abbott also reported for this committee. A Board of Control had been appointed. Letters explaining the project had been sent to the graduates and the replies had been very favorable. A company had been organized with directors and officers. A building site had been leased and the building now there was utilized as a hotel and headquarters for Alumni during the World's Fair. The Chicago Club of the University were also there. Next fall, if it seems advisable, an appropriate building will be erected, or the money already pledged will be refunded. It was ordered that the report be accepted and the action of the committee endorsed and the committee discharged.

The report of the Committee on the Y. M., and Y. W., C. A. building was given by Professor Parr. He reported that about four thousand dollars had been subscribed by the Alumni and that in many cases payments had already begun. The work of soliciting would, he said, be continued during the summer and the building would probably be begun during the vacation. Moved and seconded that the report be accepted and the commttee continued. Carried.

The Secretary reported that, acting under instructions given at the previous meeting, she had taken steps towards obtaining admission into the National Association of Alumnæ. Owing to the difficulty of obtaining the necessary information, this had not yet been accomplished. She was instructed to continue her inquiries and report at the next meeting.

Mr. Pillsbury, Secretary of the Board of Trustees, who has been appointed by that body to keep a list of all graduates of the University, then addressed the Association. He outlined a plan which he thought would be helpful in keeping a better directory of the Alumni. Upon motion, Mr. Pillsbury was requested to make a full statement of his plan for publication in the annual report. This statement precedes the list of members.

It was moved and seconded that when the Association adjourns it does so to meet again in the Chapel immediately after the open meeting. Carried.

Moved and seconded that the meeting stand adjourned. Carried.

OPEN MEETING.

The public meeting was held in the University Chapel and was opened with a song by the Glee Club. The address of welcome on behalf of the University was given by Prof. Burrill, To this address President W. L. Abbott replied as follows:

On the part of those, who, during the last twenty-one years, have received upon this platform certificates of scholarly attainments and good moral character, we thank you for your welcome.

Although many of us return here but seldom, yet our thoughts and best wishes are with you often. We still feel that this is home, that here we are always sure to receive paternal welcome, and that we are free to stroll about these grounds and buildings with an air and feeling of proprietorship. As some of us after having enjoyed three terms in the preparatory course would assume a superior and patronizing air on our return to the farm, and would gratuitously advise radical and unheard of methods in farming, so now, after a few years of experience in business, or the professions, you may expect to find many of us qualified to advise offhand upon the most perplexing and intricate questions, relating to the management of a university.

To us the old buildings, grounds, and professors look as familiar as though we had left them but yesterday; but the new buildings, new professors, new rules, customs, and methods, tell us that the management of the institution is not in a rut, but is full of vigor and aggressiveness, and the rapidly expanding enrollment lists testify as to how your efforts are receiving reward.

When we reflect that no institution having the scope and advantages of this can be self sustaining and that someone has paid the difference between our nominal tuition fees and the cost of equipping and maintaining this great institution, the question naturally arises, to whom are we indebted for an education and how can we discharge our indebtedness. And let us not be deceived into thinking that this institution, state, and nation were owing us an education and that in availing ourselves of it we merely claimed our own.

To this institution, state, and nation we are owing a debt of honor for which an exact accounting is required, unless we are to consider ourselves former inmates of such a charitable institution as the Illinois Industrial University was popularly supposed to be.

Our debt to the University of Illinois must be paid by keeping alive the memories and associations of our college days and by being always ready and valiant for her good name and interest.

To the commonwealth which has expended so much for our training, the obligation can be paid only by a diligent use of our education, by better practising the arts and principles which were here taught us, by making two blades of grass grow where formerly there was but one, by introducing improved methods in profession and practice, and by showing that here we have acquired a just deference to proper and lawful authority, and a love for the principles of patriotism and morality, and, in time of need, the ability to defend them.

If we fail to repay these debts then we shall have been guilty of squandering public funds designed for the defense and betterment of the commonwealth.

To the professors charged with the task of molding and training the minds and characters of the steadily increasing throng of students who are pouring through these halls we tender our humble but unswerving aid. May you ever have the counsel of wise, active, and devoted Trustees, and may the answers from the public treasury to your calls for support be commensurate with the magnitude and importance of your task.

With such wise counsel and liberal support we are confident that under your guidance this University will soon rank as high among similar institutions in point of scholarship and attendance as the great State of Illinois ranks in wealth, population, and intelligence, among the sister states of the Nation.

The address was followed by a song from the Glee Club after which C. W. Rolfe, '72, gave a history of student life in the University covering the first period, 1868–1873.

It is regretted exceedingly by the Secretary that it was impossible to obtain Professor Rolfe's address. It was wholly extemporaneous, and, as he left home almost immediately after commencement, the letter asking for an article on this period failed to reach him in time. He spoke of the labors of Dr. Gregory and of Professor William M. Baker, who, dying in the harness, left as his last words, the motto of the Philomathean Society, "Come up Higher." The Professor also gave some amusing reminisences of drill in the olden time and of the panic caused by the first fire alarm.

Period second, 1873–1878, was treated by Manford Savage, '78:

Ladies and Gentlemen, Fellow members of the Alumni: You see before you a victim of misplaced confidence. About an hour ago, a classmate of mine, in whom, until this time, I have had the most implicit confidence, came to me stating that Mr. Bullard, who has prepared an address on this epoch in the history of the University, was sick with the grip, and unable to be present. Your worthy president assured me that he had a message from Mr. Bullard to that effect, and insisted that he did not want quite a blank on the program, and that in order to prevent this state of affairs, I must stand up and say something, when the time from 1873 to 1878 was called. Under an impulse, born of my unshaken faith in these gentlemen, I consented. Imagine my surprise, on being told after entering this room that Mr. Bullard was, and is at this time, in another portion of this building engaged in a meeting of the Board of Trustees. Since receiving that information I have been looking at our president with great interest and with as much perplexity, as that shown by a delegate to the National convention of the People's Party at Omaha last fall, while he was reading an inscription on a tombstone in the cemetery, near that city. This particular delegate, during the "Sunday closing" of that convention, the better to prepare himself for his address the next day on "The Fleeting character of Political Parties," took a walk in the city of the dead. He came across the grave of a prominent lawyer upon whose monument was the inscription, "A Lawyer and an Honest Man." As he stood looking at it with a puzzled expression, an acquaintance approached and asked him if he had found the grave of a dear friend or a relative. He said "No. I am only wondering how they came to bury those two men in the same grave." Now, if Mr. Bullard is really present and if in the future an admiring public, or the grateful legatees of our president should (out of his money) erect him a monument, with the same inscription, any delegate of some future political party, who may read it, will be excused by me, if he shall be as much puzzled as the Omaha delegate.

As early as 1873, the University had discarded most of the experiments, which a trial of the previous years, had shown to be not practical, and was entering upon a future along the lines since that time followed. About the beginning of these years it moved out of the old house into the new. It abandoned the old "woolen mill" as the student of that day called it, to dormitory purposes, but the corn rows were yet plainly visible in the yard surrounding this building. To the freshmen of that day, full of eager hope, it was as much the promised land, as it is to him of today. I remember with what impatience, my chum and myself, watched out of the car window for its first appearance. Our train from the south, for we came from the south, not from Egypt, but just this side, (for Egypt, like the milk sickness, is always in the next neighborhood, you can't get south far enough in Illinois to reach Egypt), it seemed to us would never run from Tolono to Champaign. We finally reached here, however, and after an interview with Professor Shattuck, were assigned to room 38 in the Dormitory. Then began our first important college work, that of filling our straw tick. The one we brought with us, fortunately, we had made open at the end like a wheat sack. We walked out to the college farm, and much to our surprise, we were told to help ourselves to the straw. This we did. My chum got inside of the tick and tramped down the straw which I threw to him. When filled, the tick was just the shape of, and about as hard as, a queensware hogshead. To carry it we were obliged to borrow a fence plank. (And, Mr. President, since I came into the room I have been trying to think whether that board was ever returned, but for the life of me I can't tell, and for that reason I am willing to pay for it whenever the bill is presented. I will not claim the benefit of the statute of limitations.) For six months we climbed on a kitchen chair to get into bed; at the end of that time, our weight and that of our friends, who always sat on the bed when they visited us, had so flattened the cylinder that we dispensed with the chair. But no mortal man, ever had sweeter sleep than did the occupants of room 38, on that straw-filled tick.

The Dormitory "baching" student flourished in this epoch. The steady articles of diet were buckwheat cakes and corn meal mush. Occasionally there were bold students who tried to cook something else, but such innovations were frowned upon. In the making of buckwheat cakes we were adepts. The only thing that has come near causing a jar in my matrimonial affairs, has been a suggestion made to my wife that she can't make as good buckwheat cakes as we did in the old Dormitory. Seventy-five cents per week was the average cost of our living in that manner.

This was also the golden age of the college government. The wisdom of its senators, the integrity of its judges, and the fearlessness of its marshal were never questioned in those days. The class of 1878, like the others from 1873, were firm defenders of the college government.

The panic of 1873, reduced the number of students in attendance almost one-half, and it was several years before the institution recovered from its effects; other than this I recall no particularly unusual event happening during these years.

Of the influence, of this time upon the boys and the girls, then in attendance, none can measure it, none can say when it shall cease. It has demonstrated to the world, more clearly, perhaps, than anything else, what kind of an institution we have here. That we stand on a sort of middle ground, between what might be called strictly classical colleges and purely technical schools. The results of our position are to be found in the character of the men and women, we have turned out. To my mind the highest compliment I ever heard bestowed upon the University, was a remark made by a prominent and successful citizen of the Pacific coast. He said: "For several years my business has caused me to employ and come in contact with a large number of young men, many of whom are graduates of eastern and western colleges. I don't know where Champaign is except on the map. I never was there; but some day I am going there to see the University, for it has turned out more level-headed, capable, well-equipped, young business men, in all branches than any institution I know of in the country." Students of the years of which I speak, are now showing to the world that his characterization of our Alma Mater is correct. The work done here is illustrated by a story of Lincoln. It is said that while he was yet practicing law in Springfield, Owen Lovejoy and Stephen A. Douglas dropped into his office one day to have a little friendly chat with him, and as Lincoln asked to be excused a few minutes until he finished writing a letter which he had commenced, they began to talk between themselves, loud enough for him to hear, no doubt with the purpose of drawing from him some of that quaint philosophy of which he had such a fund. The subject under discussion was as to the proper length of a man's legs. Lovejoy asserted that Lincoln's were too long and that Douglas's were too short. This Douglas denied and the discussion grew warm. Finally Douglas appealed to Lincoln. as to what he thought was the proper length of a man's legs. Lincoln said it was a subject to which he had not given much thought and that he might be wrong, but he thought that a man's legs out to be long enough to reach from his body to the ground. So, too, with our education. It ought not to be of that kind which goes soaring off amid the stars, above all earthly affairs, so high that it hears not the throb beats of humanity, nor of that other kind which grovels in the ditch, and fails to see why anything was created that is not practical. Let our University show that while its students may climb as high as the highest, yet their legs of common sense will keep touch with the earth.

The Glee Club then favored the audience with another song.

S. W. Parr, in the absence of Mr. Heath, referred briefly to the events connected with the years 1878–1884. This period was remarkable for the Dormitory cyclone of '79; the military rebellion of '80; Jackson's raid and the war episodes of '81; and the demise of the college government during the heated term in the summer of '83. Certain other events connected with bogus programmes and the like were mentioned, but not dwelt upon. His address also was not obtainable.

The fourth period, 1883–1888, had been assigned to C. W. Henson, '87. His train was late so he did not arrive in time to fill his place on the programme. However, as to a large number of the graduates the programme would be incomplete with this period omitted, the Secretary has assumed the responsibility of inserting his sketch:

I come not as an orator, but as a narrator.

It is with great satisfaction that I visit scenes where I had aforetime so much of solid comfort outside the class room, and covered myself with so much glory inside the class room, when I had some one at my elbow to prompt me.

The most hopeful day of my life was when I matriculated in the U. of I., and the proudest day of my life—all except one—was when I bore away a diploma with the big round seal of my Alma Mater upon it. I say except one, and I am obliged to except that one for fear of domestic consequences. Many things have happened since '88, some of them felicitous and some of them calamitous—but they have not dimmed the memory of the happy hours that we spent together when you irreverently called me Molly, and I called you by such names as you were entitled to "Haec olim meminisse juvabit." Pardon this bit of pedantry. It is but little Latin that I know, but I suppose this to be the best occasion I shall have to bring that little out; for this is the most distinguished company I shall ever meet, unless we all come together again. Whether our suffering country, and our great business enterprises can spare us all at once ever again is a very serious question. We do well therefore to make the most of the present august occasion.

You require of me a very difficult task. You ask me to rehearse, not in immortal verse, but in such grandiloquous prose as I can command, a history of the extraordinary events that have been crowded into a few years. It is not my fort to write history. That must be left to those who shall come after me, who will do justice to the matchless deeds wrought by ourselves and a few of our contemporaries. Some things are worthy of special mention, but we can only touch and glance, and leave your fancy to fill up the picture with such glowing details as may occur to you.

The period between '83 and '88—what an eventful period, full of so many thrilling incidents peculiar to the student alone. Well we remember, when we entered the arena to battle with the great problems of science and lore, how all things seemed possible to him who would apply himself diligently to the pursuit of knowledge.

Bright and full of sunshine were those days when our minds knew no care and when we had no thought for the morrow, save to demonstrate to our worthy instructors that we had been wasting the midnight oil endeavoring to master the great problems for the purpose of which we were sent to the U. of I., while we had been using our ability to show to some of Champaign's fairest how entertaining a student could be. Little did we think we should ever be called upon to relate publicly what transpired during our college days, and hence no chronological record of events was kept; but this we know, that what is herein recorded is the truth (not the whole truth perhaps) and nothing but the truth. The events of our lives prior to and subsequent to our college days were very insignificant. Everyone, perhaps, thinks his time is the most eventful, and we are no exception. We thought we knew just what was to become of us and what renown awaited us. We were not like that little boy who was called as a witness before a judge. The lawyers thought him too young to testify, and doubted if he knew the weight of an oath. To impress on him the importance of telling the truth, the judge said: "Do you know what will become of you in the next world if you tell a falsehood?" "No," said the boy, "I don't know what's going to become of me in this world, let alone the next." The youth was much wiser than the student. Many of us have traveled the paths as widely separated from those planned, as the East is from the West.

The narrator was never a freshie at the U. of I., and did not experience the trials and tribulations of that class of humanity, whose only ambition seems to be to show to all that he knows it all, and, especially, how to conduct socials in an orderly manner. We have known of some such sociables which were not so much of a success as they might have been, if the principle performers and the bright and shining lights of the class had not been kidnapped or otherwise made away with by some of their friends We can speak boldly at this time, as there are no freshmen present to feel that in any way we might have reference to a similar event in their experience.

Is the memory of "Our Carter" lost to the memory of those who gathered in these halls in '84, or do faint recollections come to their mind of the time when, with a true spirit of kindness, they sought to give him a burial fitting one of his high position after his demise? How he was carried past the democratic headquarters, through the main streets and received a last glance from those who loved him so well? Do they remember the multitude of friends the departed had, and how they mistook the motives of those who were carrying him to rest, supposing that they were kidnapping the remains? The assault, the final capture of the corpse, and its resurrection to become the chief magistrate of the beautiful World's Fair city, to be the entertainer of the world's kings and nobles? The trial of the culprits and their honorable acquittal when their motives were fully explained before a court of justice in Eichberg's hall. We remember how this tragedy was produced upon the same stage on which they were acquitted, with all the effect of scenic art, and the final presentation of a token of regard for him who labored so hard to place the mourners of "Our Carter" in a true light before the world, to shed rays of hope in their minds. The presidential contest of '83-'84 comes very vividly before us, and the good time we had at Rantoul when we greeted James G. Blaine and listened to his eloquence as he pictured to us the future of this country if he were not chosen to be the chief magistrate, and the principles of absolute free trade were carried out. We did not have an opportunity to hear his excellency, Grover, who conquered in the conflict without our support to a large extent.

Where is that sidewalk which was built for economy? The boys chose it in preference to the widest sidewalk in town and insisted it was wide enough for two, though wiser people said one would have made it crowded. It was wider by moonlight than by sunlight. This may have been an optical illusion, however. I know not if that particular sidewalk has been widened, and know not where it was, but have heard it spoken of favorably by those who usually required a whole sidewalk for their accommodation.

Where is the old book store and waiting room combined, where we used to congregate on cold evenings to wait for the cars to take us to church or to see that others were not neglecting their religious duties? Duty likes company, you know. The old land-mark has vanished, and in its place has been erected a very modern room with all the latest conveniences, ample ventilation and great opportunities of observation. We cannot forget the sleigh rides when we got stuck in the ditch about four miles from town with a balky horse which resisted our most eloquent entreaties to proceed. The sleigh-ride on wheels which we gave the ladies and the banquet following the deception, all have a tendency to make us long for a repetition of the times when ambition knew no bounds and the world seemed a great picnic.

The Student's Home went up in smoke, and we helped to witness the conflagration. We remember how the only hose cart in town forgot to bring the hose with it, and how the fire was delayed thereby.

We have not studied so much astronomy since we left college. The method in vogue in our time was the most successful, at least to some of us, that has ever been tried. Hours have been exhausted in hunting for one little star which we were told in our book would pass at a certain time, and we always found our science correct. We hunted in pairs, and had such delightful experience that some of us have been living among the stars ever since.

But why should I linger in the midst of facts so familiar to you all? I speak not to the ignoble, but to the favored few who know it all and need not to be instructed. The past is crowded with beautiful memories and the future is bright with glorious hopes. Let us gather up the memories and actualize the hopes. Great things are expected of us by our by our illustrous Alma Mater, and a waiting world that already begins to quake at our coming footsteps.

Count nothing done so long as anything remains to be done, was Cæsar's motto, or the motto of somebody else just as good. Let us make it our own, and in the world's broad field of battle, let us not be like dumb driven cattle, but be heroes in the strife.

Period fifth, 1888–1893, was presented by E. T. Craig, '93:

To a history there are eras so replete with great events, so full of unimportant and mighty happenings, that they defy all but a genius to relate them. The history of the last five years of this institution, in a small scale, has been such. I will not endeavor then to make an historical sketch, but will content myself with attempting to make a resume of the most important events, and touch upon their effects.

In the division into epochs of the history of the University for the sake of convenience, strictly arbitrary lengths of time have been allotted to each. In reality epochs are things created by happenings, are periods distinctly set apart from others for some reason. In short, they mark themselves out and are not arbitrarily formed. I think the last epoch in our Alma Mater's history is in length of time rather eight years than five. This is marked distinctly from the rest in the change of the name of the institution. In 1885 the "Illinois Industrial University" became the "University of Illinois." We all believe a rose would smell as sweet if called by any other name, and we all have used the expression "for what's in a name," and that has satisfied the sentiment expressed. Yet there is not one who does not believe the mere change of name not only removed a disadvantage under which the institution was laboring, but also gave an undying impetus to its growth and progress. There is no doubt but that the advance and growth of the University in the last five years have been marvelous. I firmly believe to this rechristening is due in great part this same unprecedented and phenomenal development. At least it was the start in that direction.

In this last epoch general serenity and absence of all dissent between students and Faculty has been the rule. One year only was marked by disturbance. That was the year '90–'91, in which occurred the military trouble. Like many other things of this kind, at the time being it seemed to be certain of evil results to the institution. but all passed over with but temporary detriment.

The great evidence of a pervading desire to progress, the great proof that those in charge of the institution have wished to develop, is the willingness which has been shown to dispense with customs outgrown. It is never a good thing to throw aside old methods for new, untried ones. It is generally well to adhere to the products of experience of predecessors. Yet to stick to old ways just because they are old when there are new ones and better is paganism. Than this there is nothing that can clog progress so easily. I believe this last epoch in the history of our Alma Mater is truly iconoclastic. Old and worn out customs have been laid aside most gracefully. Methods which were a part of the University have been relegated as it were to oblivion, Innovation after innovation has been made, till the graduate of a few years ago would scarcely recognize the place. And all for its benefit. The tendency has been, it is evident, to drop all that is academical, to shun all that smacks of the preparatory school and to adopt all that rightfully belongs to the University. More and more power and responsibility has been from time to time placed in the hands of the students. Restrictions have been removed, greater freedom of action has been granted. The object has been to make men and women, not children, out of students. Demerits have been done away with, courses of study have been remodeled, electives have been made the rule and not the exception. The drill requirement has been made shorter. Attendance on chapel exercises is no longer compulsory. Fraternities have been admitted. More favor has been shown athletics. An hundred and one other things have been done, all tending in the same direction. The result of these changes is obvious and, with scarce an exception, is good.

New chairs have been created, new courses have been introduced, and the old ones bettered. Necessary appliances have been procured. Advantages in all colleges of the University have been increased Indeed there has been an advance. Tangible proofs of the growth and development of the University can be found in the increased number of students and in the fact that two, and I might say three, new buildings have been given by the legislature. The catalogue this year will show the number in attendance twice what it was five years ago. We shall have soon six buildings instead of three.

One thing which has been of essential value in advertising the University, in letting the outside world know of our existence in our base ball teams, our foot ball teams and our track athletic teams, have in my mind done an immeasurable lot of good toward the development of our school.

Marvelous as has been the growth and development in all the dedartments, in all lines, in all directions, in the last eight years it is yet far from time to lie back on our oars and congratulate ourselves. If ever the University is to amount to anything extraordinarily great, an immense amount must be accomplished in the next few years.

Chicago University has just been established and great things are expected of it. While the two institutions can never be said to rival one another, yet we must keep abreast or near it. A great many changes are still needed. Many improvement could well be made.

We all want to see the University of Illinois succeed. When away from here our direct influence, unless having some official capacity, is small. One thing we can do, and that is be loyal. Nothing to my mind speaks better for an institution than to have its Alumni fairly bristling with loyalty. It decides many times the wavering minds of young people where to attend college. And what we need is more students. The greater the number the more can be conscientiously asked of the legislators and the more they will feel like granting, and without their assistance nothing can be accomplished My wish is that this great advance of the Univerversity in the last eight years may be an introduction to a still great one. I should like to see the University of Illinois the peer of any like institution of the land, and there is no reason why it should not be.

At the close of the open meeting the adjourned business meeting was called to order, President Abbott in the chair. The Treasurer presented the following report:

ALUMNI MEETING FOR 1894.

The local members of the Programme Committee have already met and have begun planning for the meeting of 1894. It has been decided to hold an Alumni pic-nic and re-union instead of the usual literary meeting. The committee hopes that this plan will meet with the hearty coöperation of the members of the Association and that many will endeavor to return.

THE ALUMNI RECORD.

A year ago, upon request of the Alumni Association of the University of Illinois, the Trustees of the University directed me to keep the Alumni Record. This record is now merely a list of addresses, with occupation and place of business added. In some institutions a much fuller record is kept, and, with the approval of the Association and the coöperation of its members, I will undertake to prepare and keep a more complete record here.

In order that I may have the data necessary in compiling this record, the main facts in every life should be furnished me, and with regard to these I make the following suggestions:

1. Place and date of birth. Also names of father and mother, and brothers and sisters, and more remote genealogy, so far as possible.

2. The leading facts of your life up to the time of entering the University; as, residence, occupation, place of education, etc.

3. Date of entering the University and the incidents of residence there. State course, positions held in battalion, societies, Illini, etc., etc., and other matters of interest.

4. Since graduation—

a. Your residence and occupation—where you have been, and in what engaged, and what journeys, especially, in foreign countries, you have made, with exact dates.

b. Public offices of profit, honor, or trust, of every kind, which you have held, with dates of your commissions, elections, or appointments, and times of continuance therein.

c. Marriage,—time and place, with maiden name and residence of wife, and her parents' names in full, or name, residence, and occupation of husband, with his parents' names in full.

d. Names and birthdays of children.

e. Deaths of wife, husband, or children, with dates.

f. Marriages of children, with names and residences of their wives or husbands, and the latters' parents' names in full. Admission of children to College.

g. Authorship of books, pamphlets, magazine articles, etc., with their exact titles and dates of publication.

h. College degrees received and membership of societies.

i. Other circumstances in your life which may occur to you as proper subjects of record.

j. Your address in full.

As dates are very important, please be particularly careful in ascertaining them and in putting them down.

Some of the Alumni have died. Of these I shall be glad to make as full a record as possible; but I shall have to depend upon their classmates and friends for the memoranda needed. A late picture of each deceased member would be a valuable addition to the record.

I propose to transfer these biographies, when received, to type written sheets of uniform size and to keep them in suitable portfolios. To these sheets additions will be made from time to time, so that a life record of each member of the Association may at all times be easily accessible.

It will be manifest to the members of the Association that each must take a personal interest in this matter, at least so far as to supply information concerning himself — if the record proposed is to be made. I shall very cheerfully do my part, if only you will give me the opportunity.

If any one has information as to any of the Alumni whose addresses or occupations are not down in the list, or are given incorrectly (for though much pains has been taken with the list I fear there are still errors in it,) kindly communicate it to me at your earliest convenience. W. L. Pillsbury.

The unfinished business was then taken up and the President called for a report from the Building Committee. In the absence of the members of that Committee the Secretary reported that the project of erecting a building in Chicago for Alumni headquarters had been temporarily abandoned.

The Report of Committee of twenty on Legislative Action was called and Mr. Bullard, '78, Chairman of the Committee, reported as follows:

To the Alumni Association: The Committee on Legislative Action, which has been appointed for two years, has not yet had a meeting. There has, however, been some work done by individual members, this mostly by personal letters and personal conversation with each other, and with friends of the University. The reason for the appointment of a Committee on Legislative Action, as understood by the Committee, and which forms the basis for the duties laid upon this Committee is as follows:

An institution for higher education to enable it to take the place and perform the functions of a University must have a large and increasing income.

The income of a University to encourage its best activeness must be sure and prompt.

In order that an income may be large and sure the source from which it comes must be adequate.

In order that Universities may have their incomes so regulated they have constantly sought to accumulate princely endowments, and to put those endowments into forms of producing regular and safe dividends.

The object of appointing your Committee was that the regularity and annual increase of the income of the University might be encouraged.

There are several facts that resolve the duties of this Committee into several single lines.

The income of the University at present is derived from the following sources:

Interest on Endowment derived from United States land grant.

Fees from students.

United States Appropriation under the Morrill Aid act.

State Appropriations made biennially by the State legislature.

The first of these has reached the sum of $450,000.00 and with a balance of 12,000 acres of land yet in possession of the University, will be increased to about $600,000.00 on the disposal of all the lands. This will be the maximum amount of endowment from the land grant act.

The income from fees will increase with the increase in attendance. It is possible to enlarge the income from this source by making the fees larger, though this will have the effect to retard somewhat the growth in attendance.

The income from the Morrill aid act is the next year $20,000 00 and will increase $1,000.00 per year till the sum of $25,000.00 is reached and then will be continued annually at $25,000.00. This fund is paid alike to all the state colleges and this next year the aggregate will amount to $800,000.00 to be paid from the United States treasury

When the maximum is reached, which will be in the year 1900, the annual draft on the government will be $1,000,000.00. This money, it is stipulated by the law, will be paid from moneys received from the sale of public lands. As the public lands are becoming scarce and the government domain is gradually and rapidly passing away the foundation of the Morrill aid act payments may be so weakened as to cause abandonment. Besides the bill may be earlier repealed if the income for the necessary expenses of the government is so reduced as to cause a deficit in the federal treasury. It will be noticed that this is not a source of income which has the element of continuance.

The last mentioned is the bi-ennial appropriations from the state. This has been our most prolific source of income and is the only one capable of large increase. It, however, has not only not been regular but not been either sure or large as well. It cannot be regular for the state constitution forbids the making of appropriations for any purpose for a longer period than the life of the legislature so making them It cannot be sure for each appropriation is largely dictated by the political influences which obtain at the time In size it may be large or small according to the policy of the party and men responsible for the appropriations.

To have an income for the University large and sure and regular we must look to the liberality of the state. It cannot be either sure or regular under the present limitations of the state constitution.

Thus it appears that the duties of your committee are to advance to accomplishment the following objects:

To change the fundamental law of the state so that the legislature may have the power to make a continuing appropriation for the University of Illinois.

To lead the people of the state through the legislature to make a liberal continuing appropriation under the authority of the changed constitution.

To lead the legislature so to make the basis of the appropriation that the appropriations will increase from year to year with the growth of the state.

You will perceive that in putting these duties on your committee that you compel them to undertake more than a "land office" business.

We believe that the objects to be accomplished can be compassed only by long continued, vigorous and wise methods; we therefore recommend the following for your consideration:

That the committee on legislative action be a permanent committee, composed of 37 members, one being chosen from each congressional district of the state, and fifteen from the state at large.

That this committee have the right to solicit money for the accomplishment of its duties in the name of the Alumni Association of the University, the committee annually reporting to the Association its receipts and expenditures and its actions in the progress of its work. Respectfully submitted, S. A. BULLARD, Chairman.

Moved and seconded that the report be adopted. Carried.

For the Y. M. C. A. building committee S. W. Parr reported that over eighteen thousand dollars had been subscribed and a site for the building just east of the new Engineering Hall had been purchased. The committee from the Alumni Association had, however, decided it best to turn over the work begun by it to the committee appointed by the students. It was moved and seconded that the report be accepted and the committee discharged. Carried.

The secretary, again reporting that she had been unable to gain sufficient information regarding the National Alumnæ Association to make any report, was instructed to continue her investigations and report at the next meeting.

The unfinished business having been disposed of the Association proceeded to the discussion of the new business. W. A. Heath read a letter from Dr. A. S. Draper replying to an invitation to be present at this re-union, in which he expressed his interest in the Alumni Association and regretted his inability to accept the invitation. It being the sentiment of the Association that resolutions should be offered to Draper the new Regent, Dr. Burrill, the Acting Regent, and Prof. E. Snyder, on leave of absence, a committee to draft resolutions was appointed. The committee consisting of C. G. Neely, F. M. McKay, H. M. Dunlap, and Katherine Kennard, reported as follows:

WHEREAS, The members of the Alumni Association of the University of Illinois learn with pleasure that the Board of Trustees has secured the services of that distinguished educator, Dr. Andrew S. Draper, as Regent of our University, therefore be it Resolved, That we herewith express our gratification that one so eminent as Dr. Draper is to preside over the destiny of the University of Illinois and we pledge to him our hearty good will, warmest sympathy and active coöperation in every effort that shall tend to advance the interests of our Alma Mater.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to Dr. Draper by the secretary.

Resolutions for Professor Burrill:

WHEREAS, Dr. T. J. Burrill has, during the past three years, filled the responsible and trying position of Acting Regent of the University of Illinois, in the most able and satisfactory manner to all the Alumni and friends of the University; therefore be it Resolved, That the Alumni of the University of Illinois, knowing that the services of Dr. T. J. Burrill as Acting Regent of the University of Illinois, will close with this college year, desire in this public manner to express the deep debt of gratitude they feel towards him.

Resolved, That the Alumni of the University of Illinois tender to Dr. Burrill our most grateful appreciations of the value of his devoted services during a period fraught with great interests to the University

Resolved, That we recognize the great advance made in all lines of work during his term of office, and that we will ever hold him in grateful remembrance for his earnest service to the University to and the cause of education in Illinois.

Resolved, That even to a casual observer there is evidence of great progress made during the Regency of Dr. Burrill and that students past, present and to come are indebted to him for much that is satisfactory in existing affairs of the institution, and the Alumni take genuine pride in congratulating Dr. Burrill upon his success, and in congratulating the institution that it numbers among its faculty so warm a sympathizer of students, so distinguished a scientist, so grat a a man as he who vacates the Regent's chair to resume the work to which his life has been devoted with a signal success.

The committee also presented the following resolutions with regard to Professor Snyder:

WHEREAS, Professor Edw. Snyder, after twenty-five years of faithful and efficient service, resigned on account of ill health, and

WHEREAS, He has been our never failing friend as well as teacher, encouraging and stimulating us to better things by a warm sympathy and an ever willing kindness; therefore be it

Resolved, That we express our satisfaction over the leave of absence given him and tender to him our sympathy and love with the wish that rest and change of climate may bring him health and that the fall of '95 may find him again at his post in our Alma Mater, from which we miss him to-day and from which we can ill afford to lose so true and tried a teacher and friend. We shall ever hold in grateful appreciation and remembrance the invaluable services of Professor Snyder to the University of Illinois.

F. D. Rugg then presented the following petition:

To the Honorable Members of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois: We, the undersigned citizens of the State of Illinois, respectfully petition your honorable body to enact a law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within four (4) miles of the University of Illinois.

The president read the following communication from the managers of the '96 Junior Annual:

CHAMPAIGN, ILLINOIS, June 5, 1894.

To the Alumni: Permit me to say that the Junior Annual of the class of '96 will contain, in addition to the usual features of a class annual, a chapter devoted to the Alumni of the University. This will contain a list of the Alumni, their addresses, and occupations, biographies of the more celebrated, poems and other matter by Alumni, including stories of the good old times, a half-tone of the old dormitory, and half-tone portraits of twenty-five of the most prominent professors who are not here now. Another department of special interest to Alumni will be one on the history of the University, written carefully and entertainingly, each college being treated separately, In addition to these, the annual will contain the usual features. It will be copiously illustrated, and its typography will be a special feature. The management hope to issue the annual by the first of January, and have settled upon the moderate price of one dollar. Orders at any time will receive careful attention.

Most respectfully yours,
ROBERT K. PORTER, Editor.

Next in order was the election of officers. Nominations were made by acclamation. For President the name of C. G. Neely, '80, was proposed. Moved and seconded that the nominations be closed. Carried. Moved and seconded that the Secretary be instructed to cast the ballot for Mr. Neely. Carried.

For Vice-President the name of Mrs. A. N. Talbot, '81, was proposed. Moved and seconded that the Secretary be instructed to cast the ballot for Mrs. Talbot. Carried. The present Secretary and Treasurer holding until '97, this closed the election.

It was moved and seconded that the class of '94 be admitted to membership in the Association upon complying with the rule of the Association, signing the constitution and paying the initiation fee of one dollar. Carried.

The meeting was then declared adjourned.

ALUMNI DINNER.

The committee in charge of the exercises of Alumni Day decided to do away with the regular literary program this year and to substitute in its stead an informal dinner. The resident Alumni and various members of the Faculty were enthusiastic and contributed generously to the scheme so that the dinner was given without expense to the visiting members of the Association. Much praise is due Miss Alice Barber, '92, and Mr. G. P. Clinton, '90, who had charge of the committees that accomplished the work.

Shortly after the adjournment of the business meeting, the Association, the Trustees, the Faculty, and the members the Senior class were invited to the Preparatory Chapel where the beautifully decorated tables had been arranged. About two hundred sat down to a most attractive pic-nic lunch, and proceeded to enjoy themselves to the fullest extent. The most hearty good will prevailed and the various class yells aroused so much enthusiasm that even the Faculty and the Trustees, who, according to the Seniors' dictum, are the ones "who do as they please," were compelled to unbend and respond. After the more substantial part of the repast had been fully discussed, the President introduced Mr. C. W. Carter, '93, who in an extremely witty way announced the following toasts: "The University and the Alumni," Dr. T. J. Burrill; "The College Woman and the Home," Dr. A. W. Palmer, '84; "What the Co-Eds think of the College Man," Mrs. Professor Talbot, '81; "Looking Backward," E. M. Burr, '78; "Looking Forward," W. C. Tackett, '94.

We regret that we can not reproduce all that was said.

Mr. C. G. Neely among the many pleasant things which he said, paid a high tribute to Dr. Burrill, in reply to which the Dr. said that he would take it as the greatest honor that could be conferred upon him if he could be an Alumnus of the University of Illinois. At the close of his remarks a motion was made and seconded by a large number that the Association adopt Dr. Burrill. It was carried unanimously.

It was agreed by all that the dinner was a thorough success in every particular. At its close all the teaching force was invited into the Regent's parlor, where Professor Morrow in a feeling speech presented Dr. Burrill with an elegant Century dictionary as an indication of the appreciation by the professors and instructors of his work of the last three years.

In the evening Mrs. Dr. Burrill was also presented with some beautiful pieces of silver ware by a few members of the Association.

The program of the day was closed by an entertainment given by the Physical Culture League and Dramatic Arts Club. The following program was presented:

ALUMNI MEETING FOR 1895.

The Alumni dinner and re-union of this year was so successful that the committee having the matter in charge for 1895 think it would be well to make the affair an annual occurrence, and if possible without expense to the visiting Alumni. The committee proposes sending out a circular letter in the spring giving a prospectus of the proceedings of Alumni day, and it hopes to meet with a hearty response from the members of the Association.

ALUMNI DAY, TUESDAY, JUNE 11.

MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF LEGISLATIVE ACTION.

The Committee of Legislative Action was appointed by President C. G. Neely, acting upon the advice of S. A. Bullard, in his report given before and adopted by the Alumni Association at the meeting of 1894. The committee consists of thirty-seven members, one from each Congressional District, the others from the State at large. S. A. Bullard, of Springfield, is the chairman and the committee is a permanent one and is to report annually to the Association.

Pursuant to the call of the chairman the committee met in the Adelphic Hall at 9:00 a. m. The meeting was called to order by Chairman Bullard and Myrtle E. Sparks, secretary of the Association, was elected secretary of the committee.

After some discussion it was decided that the work of the committee during the ensuing year should be of two kinds; to endeavor, so far as possible, in all conventions to be held to create a friendly interest in the University and to secure the nomination of men to the Legislature loyal to it, and to create public sentiment so that an amendment could be proposed to the constitution providing for the support of the University by a mill tax, or to have such a clause included in the new constitution, should one be submitted to the vote of the people in the near future.

It was moved and seconded that the following committees should be appointed: A political committee, a committee on publication, and a committee on finance. Carried.

It was moved and seconded that the chairmen of the three committees just formed, together with Chairman Bullard and the President of the Alumni Association should form an executive committee. The motion was carried. It was moved and seconded that the regular meetings of the committee should be held on each Alumni Day as long as a need for the committee existed. Carried.

The meeting was declared adjourned.
